Nazis Will Force Jews Into Ghettos

Berlin Stones Jewish Store

BERLIN, Nov. 11 (AP)—Nazis predicted today a restoration of the Ghetto for Jews under new restrictive decrees promised after the upsurge of anti-Jewish violence.

The Jews, said the Nazi informants, would be compelled to live and do business only in the Ghetto of their city. Their shops would be tolerated only in sufficient number to supply the needs of the Jewish communities.

Jews estimated between 700 and 1000 members of their race had been seized in Berlin alone. Additional arrests in Munich brought the total there to an estimated 2400.

THOUSANDS SEIZED

Several thousand more Jews were reported in custody in various other parts of the nation.

Three American Jews were among a number of foreign Jews who protested to their consulates against the destruction of their stores in yesterday's demonstrations.

Four Netherlands Jews and an unstated number of British Jews likewise asked assistance of their respective consulates.

Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels today warned Jews outside of Germany that their behavior as well as that of German Jews would determine future treatment of Jews in the Reich.

LAWS READY SOON

He said that new restrictive laws and decrees were being prepared and would be issued "during the next few days."

Speaking for 45 minutes to the foreign press, Goebbels said yesterday's anti-Jewish outburst, which vented itself in the burning and dynamiting of synagogues and destruction of Jewish shops, was spontaneous. He insisted there was no looting.

Goebbels argued that the very fact that the demonstrations occurred in different cities showed that they were not organized but represented primitive reactions of the people.

"When the death of Vom Rath occurred (the slaying of Ernest Vom Rath, a secretary of the German embassy in Paris by a Polish Jew) everybody with a knowledge of the nation's psychology knew something would happen," Goebbels asserted.

"ON SIDE OF PEOPLE"

"While I would not have done as the people did yesterday, yet I admit that inwardly I stood completely on the side of the people."

Goebbels closed with a declaration that Germany's future treatment of Jews "depends both on their behavior here and that of Jews abroad."

"If Jews abroad have a heart for their coreligionists in Germany let them be truthful in what they say about us," he warned.

"Maybe Americans will learn from writings about Jews in Germany what measures to adopt in their own country to solve the Jewish problem."

There will be no reimbursement for the damage done, prominent Nazis said, because Nazis regarded the action by the crowds as a "force majeure" (an inevitable force, applied somewhat as in the phrase "act of God").

Drive On Jews Stirs Britain

LONDON, Nov. 11 (AP)—British public opinion has been so outraged by German violence against Jews, informed quarters said today, that Prime Minister Chamberlain's program of appeasement with Germany may be considerably hampered.

The government meanwhile took steps to protect British Jews from violence in Germany after the wave of anti-semitic destruction that has just swept the country.

Until yesterday there were persistent rumors that the prime minister soon would seek an opportunity to discuss the colonial question with Reichsfuehrer Hitler as part of a general European settlement.

Now it is believed any such negotiations with Germany probably will be postponed.

Prayers for the Jewish people "in their trouble" were said by Bishop Paul de Labilliere, dean of Westminster, in a last-minute change in the Armistice service.

Garment Union Quits CIO

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (INS)—The International Ladies Garment Workers Union today severed its affiliation with the CIO.

With three members of its 22-man executive board absent, the remaining board members voted unanimously to leave the CIO and to continue the work of the union seeking a peace between the CIO and the American Federation of Labor.

In a resolution, the board explained that the ILGWU left the A. F. of L. with which it was originally affiliated when John L. Lewis set up his CIO to organize workers along industrial line. So long as the CIO remained a labor unit interested primarily in organization of unorganized workers, the resolution said, the ILGWU remained with the Lewis forces.

OUTLINE REASONS

Now that the CIO plans to organize as a permanent labor institution under charter at its convention in Pittsburgh next week the garment workers feel they no longer can remain within its ranks, the resolution added. Outlining reasons for today's action which took the ILGWU out of the CIO, the resolution said, in part:

"The formation of a permanent national union to supersede the CIO (such as is planned at next week's CIO convention) would, in our judgment, sharpen the conflict in the labor movement, and would create greater obstacles for ultimate reconciliation.

REFUSE CIO INVITE

"Traditionally opposed to dual unionism, we therefore decide not to take part in the move to form a permanent competitive national organization."

The vote came technically upon a motion to refuse the CIO's invitation to the ILGWU to attend the Pittsburgh convention inasmuch as only unions attending the CIO meeting can sign the CIO charter and constitution, today's move took the garment workers out of the CIO, and was recognized as such a step by the board members.

Unwed Mother's Dream:

Modest Mate Can Be Prince Charming

MARY SYLVESTER AND HER BABY DOROTHEA
"Mother Love Transcends All"

By GEORGE W. CLARKE

When all the world seemed against Mary Sylvester, 16, unmarried and the mother of a 9-months-old baby girl, she made up her mind to do something about it.

So, in the steamy warmth of her mother's kitchen in Foxboro, she sat herself down and wrote a letter—first step in a campaign to find and win for herself a husband who will love her and the little one, for always . . .

Mary Sylvester's Prince Charming needn't come riding over the Foxboro hills on a white charger and with a plume in his hat . . .

It's Mary speaking now, and, for the time at least, she's put by all the heartaches and terror which came to her when she had her baby, Dorothea Roberta, the boy ran away and the girls wouldn't speak to her any more.

So she's dreaming a dream of the man she really wants to love, and whom she wants to love her.

"He must be an American," she said . . .

Her father, W. S. Sylvester, painter and builder, is from Maine; her mother from Nova Scotia.

"And I'd like to have him between 21 and 25. I don't think I'd like anyone much older, but—" and the need for someone, anyone crept into her voice and eyes—"I might have to."

Prince Charming, she went on, should weigh about 150, and be about 5 feet 9 inches tall. He

'Make Best Of It,' Mary's Philosophy

Mary Sylvester, 16-year-old Foxboro unwed mother, summed up her poignant, courageous philosophy of life in the following simple words:

"You do things you don't mean to, and they make trouble. When they do, there's nothing but to make the best of it . . . That's all I'm trying to do."

MRS. HENRY TOPPING, JR.
But a Real Flying Trip

Socialite Flies East, Mum on Trip

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 11 (INS)—Literally and figuratively on a flying trip to Manhattan, Mrs. Henry Topping, Jr., wife of the millionaire New York socialite, was speeding East today after changing planes here.

Presumably en route to settle her marital trouble with Topping, the former actress, ex-wife of Playwright Jack Kirkland, declined to comment on her domestic affairs. She stated:

"I'm going back to Honolulu in three weeks and enter the ice cream manufacturing business. Mr. Topping will not be in New York."

Shares Sale Cash With Employes

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., Nov. 11 (AP)—John F. Webendorfer received $1,000,000 for his business and distributed $250,000 of it among his employes.

"What could I have done without them?" Webendorfer asked. "They were responsible for my success in business and it is only fair that they should have a share in the profits."

The business was the Webendorfer-Wills Company, manufacturer of printing machinery, principally off-set presses.

Sharing in the $250,000 were 115 employes, their share based on length of service. Four men, who had served 15 years received $10,000 each; two received $3000; five, $7000 and several others $5000 each.

Webendorfer said today all of the employes would have jobs under the new set-up as the local plant would be kept open with Webendorfer and his son, John, in charge.

Nip Fascist Plot Against Swiss

BERNE, Switzerland, Nov. 11 (AP)—Police grilled 14 Fascist leaders today about what they considered a "plot hostile to the democratic regime."

She's A COP Cow

SOUTHINGTON, Conn., Nov. 11 (INS)—Sam Ogonowoski, local farmer, admitting he was a Republican, told B. J. Monkiewicz, elected Congressman-at-large in the recent elections, a cow of his has been giving an extra quart of milk each day since Tuesday. The entire G.O.P. ticket swept the state.

The Republicans promised recovery in campaign speeches and the cow is taking it seriously, was the way Ogonowski explained it.

Throngs Cheer Vets on Parade

A record Armistice Day crowd of more than 250,000 persons jammed downtown Boston today as 20,000 American Legion marchers celebrated the ending of the World War, 20 years ago.

Police estimated that at least 150,000 spectators watched the colorful show put on by the holiday's two successive parades, the first sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the second by the Legion.

Another 100,000 thronged into the city to work or to shop, as the principal department stores opened at 1 p. m.

Subways and railroad terminals were clogged with the rush of commuters.

Auto traffic was tied up tight in a dozen arteries leading into the downtown area.

Thousands, on their way to the Boston College-Boston University football game at Fenway Park or to other schoolboy or college games in Greater Boston were delayed by the in-town jam.

20,000 ARCHERS

More than 20,000 were in line, including army, navy and marine corps units; veterans' groups,

At Long Last Kin Visit Windsors

By KENNETH T. DOWNS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, Nov. 11 (INS)—In a moving and dramatic meeting which may open the way for the Duke and Duchess of Windsor to return to England, the ex-King today greeted his brother, the Duke of Gloucester, for the first time in his long exile.

Not only did the Windsors and Duke and Duchess of Gloucester meet under circumstances of obvious mutual affection, but they publicly demonstrated that the rift in the British royal family caused by King Edward's determination to marry an American is being healed.

Armistice Day crowds of volatile Frenchmen quickly caught the happy spirit of the meeting. Driving about the city, the royal quartet was loudly cheered, and traffic disrupted wherever they went.

HITCH IN YULE PLANS

Gloucester, the broad-shouldered, phlegmatic military man of the royal family, is here to invite the Windsors to spend Christmas with Queen Mary and the rest of the regal group at Sandringham, according to reports from court circles.

A hitch in the possible Christmas reunion, however, lies in Windsor's determination that he will not return to England unless the duchess, the former Wallis Warfield of Baltimore, is accorded the title of "Her Royal Highness."

Warmly shaking hands, the dukes of Windsor and Gloucester, although men of an entirely different stamp and different tastes,

Grounded Ship Blocks Canal

Blocking all traffic through the Cape Cod Canal, the Pacific Coast freighter North Haven ran aground today. She was freed six and a half hours after the mishap.

Held up by grounding were three passenger steamers, including the Boston-bound SS. St. John of the Eastern Steamship Line with 350 passengers aboard, many coming here for today's and tomorrow's football games.

The St. John and the other vessels were expected to dock late this afternoon.

The North Haven went aground shortly after 4 a. m. just west of the Bourne bridge, a few hundred yards from the Buzzards Bay entrance to the canal. She grounded on an even keel in the south channel.

Pulled free, damage was declared slight. The North Haven is a vessel of 4500 gross tons.

High Seas Balk Mercy Plane

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 (AP)—Lieut. True Miller of the coast guard and a crew of two today flew 200 miles out to sea to transfer and treat a scalded seaman only to find the sea too rough to alight.

Miller radioed that he had circled the American freighter Vincent and was informed by its master that, while the scalded second engineer suffered "excruciating pain," the injuries were not serious.

Hunt Navy Secret Films Stolen Here

Four reels of movie film containing vital secrets of Uncle Sam's new super dreadnaughts and revealing "inside" details of recent maneuvers were stolen today, and within a few hours naval intelligence officers went to Fall River on the trail of a mysterious automobile.

The films were stolen shortly after midnight from the parked and locked car of T. Allan Gunning, Navy machinist's mate, on Portland street, North End.

It was understood the naval intelligence officers had information that a second automobile was seen driving away shortly before the theft was discovered.

The license number of this second car is known, it was said.

Joy street police, meanwhile, held two West End boys for questioning, following a "tip" that a gang of youths has been engaged in looting parked cars in the North End for several nights past.

POLICE PUSH PROBE

The two youths held, however, insisted they knew nothing about the looting of Gunning's, or any other, machine.

Six special officers under Sergeant Warren Liese were assigned to the investigation by Captain William Donovan of Joy street station. Captain Donovan asked that Gunning himself be sent to the station house to give such assistance to the police in their investigation as might be possible.

Naval authorities were reluctant to talk of the stolen films' importance. It was learned, however, that they are official movies, taken for purposes of instruction and illustration of lectures to naval officers.

They reveal details of construction of the new super-dreadnaughts, and also jealously guarded secrets as to performance and tactical maneuvers, it was learned.

PARRY QUESTIONS

Just why or how such presumably vital secrets were in Gunning's keeping were questions neatly sidestepped at navy headquarters.

Gunning parked his car on Portland street to attend the Marine Corps League anniversary ball in Boston Garden, he explained in reporting the theft. The film, a total of 1600 feet, was in four cans, each plainly marked, "Property of the United States Navy."

Gunning himself has been in the navy 18 years.

The thieves apparently pushed a wire through the ventilator of the car, hooking it around the door handle and thus opening the locked door from the inside. They made a clean sweep of everything in the car, taking not only the film but a camera and personal papers.

HINT AT SPIES

Police said they were uncertain whether the theft was the work of spies or merely of professional auto thieves. With the activities of spies under investigation throughout the country, and with the sensational spy trial now going on in New York, naval intelligence authorities, however, were unable to conceal their perturbation.

The four cans of film contain "shots" of naval secrets sufficient to jail any person caught with them in his possession. There is one whole sequence showing new tactical developments with smoke screens during recent maneuvers—exactly the sort of thing that spies are sent to get.

Blasts Mar Erin's Armistice Fete

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Nov. 11 (AP)—Thunderous explosions of dynamite today broke the customary two minutes of silence at Belfast's Armistice Day ceremonies.

No one was injured and the damage was confined to wrecking of the wall in which the dynamite was set off.

The explosions were reported to have been a Republican protest against the Armistice Day celebration.

'The Hot Rock'

By P. F. REED
(Recently Released from Alcatraz After Serving Four Years)
(Copyright, 1938, by Hearst Publications, Inc.)

All day long and all night long they howled.

They were Alcatraz convicts, 150 of them, bucking odds that couldn't be beat. They knew they couldn't win, but they were ribbing themselves into thinking they might win, and to help along the ribbing they howled.

They were trying to soften up the Rock, which is plenty hard, and the try they made was a strike. Twice before they had tried it, and twice before they had found out that the Rock isn't softening up a bit.

But here they are, in September of 1937, making a third try; striking for a commissary, and newspapers, and industrial pay, and the other prison privileges that keep cons in other stirs from going nuts.

As I said before, the strike was planned and organized. It began Monday morning when "Red" Kerr, member of the Touhy mob, led his three dozen chumps out of the laundry and other shops.

They merely announced that they weren't working and were ordered back to their cells.

100 FIRST NIGHT

When the laundry crew broke things open, Mickey O'Brien, New York mail robber, jumped in right away with his forty or fifty out of the mat shop and tailor shop and model shop.

Another gang joined up in the afternoon, so that almost a hundred were in the thing that first night.

Other gangs dribbled in the next morning and the next afternoon. They had held back purposely, so that their going in would make a lot of chumps think the strike was getting good.

Rock Strike Terror Told

What happened when 150 Alcatraz convicts went on strike is described in today's installment of "The Hot Rock." The strike failed to achieve any of its objectives and no such mutiny ever will get results, says P. F. Reed, who also tells you why.

At its height, the strike had about half the entire con population in on it; after that, new ones kept going in and old ones kept coming out.

When you went in, you went first to your own cell. You waited there till a guard opened your door and said "deputy warden" and motioned you out.

You walked ten steps ahead of him to the deputy's desk at the end of the center cell block, and you had E. J. Miller, associate warden, talk to you.

He asked you what you wanted, and why you thought you'd get anywhere by striking, and warned you that you'd lose plenty, and advised you to change your mind and stay out—but he made no promises.

MADE UP MIND

For reasons I've already stated, you'd made up your mind to go in, so you told the deputy to forget it and you marched back to your cell.

Two or three guards came along and ordered you to strip down, and you tossed your clothes out to them and they shook them down. Pencil and any other little personal belongings dropped to the floor. You're going to the hole, and won't need them.

Then they toss your clothes on the floor—except your socks—and you come out on the gallery and put them on so they can watch and make sure you don't slip any contraband into your clothes.

Then they lead you to the hole—or would, if the hole hadn't overflowed long before. With so many cons on strike, isolation cells were pressed into use for "holes," and even part of one regular cell block.

Once in your new cell, which is absolutely bare, you take off your shoes, and hand them out, and they give you a pair of slippers. That's so you can't pound on the floor with your shoes and make a racket that's different from the nerve-tearing racket that's already going on.

BELL, WHISTLE

It's a racket made by 150 cons who are trying their best to go entirely nuts—trying to whip themselves into a spot where they can't think, or feel—into a condition where they're numb.

They yell, and howl, and whistle, and rattle the bars, and bounce their tincups on the cement floor. The cell-building is like a sound-box, and every sound echoes and re-echoes, and it's like being inside a drum that some kid is pounding hell out of.

They howl to make a noise, and they howl, too, to settle grudges that ordinarily they wouldn't dare to show.

They scream abuse at the warden, calling him "Pussyfoot" and "Saltwater" and "Big Foot." They blast out a song in which they offer to hang him to a sour apple tree.

They pass on the deputy and call him "Meathead" and "Lunch-head," and "Big, Bad Wolf."

Then they cut loose on the guards, singly and in bunches, and scatted them and ordered them off the

Hurley to Keep 'Hands Off' El Fare Increase

Governor Hurley today declared he would adopt a "hands-off" attitude towards the Boston Elevated 5-cent fare boost effective November 19.

"I have not interfered with any department head since I took office, and I have no intention of doing so now," the governor declared.

At the same time Governor Hurley expressed "absolute confidence" in the Elevated trustees and supported their augument that the only way to wipe out a deficit was to raise revenue receipts.

Meanwhile, legislators were threatening to fight the plan and to start a sweeping investigation of the finances of the Elevated, and the way they are being administered.

Close to 1,000,000 people will be effected if the order of the public trustees goes into effect.

Chairman Edward E. Whiting, in his announcement of the raising of fares, made it clear that so far as the trustees were concerned, the decision was final.

Purpose of the scheme is to help wipe out the inevitable deficit of $3,000,000 for next year.

GRAFTON, Nov. 11—Perlin Charter, explosives expert for the State Police was summoned here today by State Detectives Edward J. McCarthy, to assist in the investigation of the dynamite explosion which snuffed out the life of George S. Bolivar, 36, of Shrewsbury and injured several other persons.

According to a preliminary report of Detective McCarthy, Bolivar was engaged in levelling the ground in the rear of the Grafton State Hospital, when a stick of dynamite he was using to blast rock prematurely exploded.

The others injured include Ralph Hall, 21, an employe who lives at the hospital; Frank Jordan, 41, a farmhand; Joseph Matthews and James McQuilskin, farm department employes who were assisting Bolivar.

Detective McCarthy said that he believed the explosion was accidental.

Observers linked the announcement with a new air force rearmament drive announced by the minister yesterday—when he said that next year's air force expenditures would rise to a billion dollars.

WORTH A DIME

Old Jail Pals Are Seized on Dope Charges

This was a luckless day for two West End pals whose friendship started 20 years ago when they staged a holdup in a Worcester saloon and "accidentally" shot the bartender.

They served state prison terms for that adventure and wiped their slate clean, temporarily.

But today they were arrested again, this time for alleged possession of narcotics.

The accused pair, William O. R. "The Doc" Paul, 56, and David R. "Little Fife" Leisk, 58, were trailed to their respective Bowdoin street and Green street lodgings by headquarters Detectives Francis L. Sweeney and Michael F. O'Brien.

The officers said they found quantities of heroin in both men's rooms, as well as eight hypodermic needles.

Paul, alias "The Doc," took his arrest philosophically, according to the detectives. While they were searching his room, they said, he showed them a score of his "inventions."

These included a type of "fireproof" cloth, a steel box with an "invisible" lock, an invisible ink "you can't detect even with X-Ray," a trick faucet with quickly-changeable washers and an acid-spraying machine "which would burn the clothes right off you."

He also displayed a master pull-cord which would turn various lights off and on according to the number of times it was yanked.

Dies to Seek More Funds for Probe

CLEVELAND, Nov. 11 (AP)—Rep. Martin Dies (D.) of Texas, chairman of the congressional committee investigating unAmerican activities in the United States, announced today he would seek an additional appropriation of between $200,000 and $300,000 to extend the inquiry for another two years.

Leg Broken, She Walks To Hospital

A woman who had walked several blocks with a fractured bone in her left leg was admitted today for treatment to the Cambridge City Hospital.

She was Gladys Ebingero, 38, of Humboldt avenue, Roxbury, whom police found sitting in a dazed condition on a sidewalk in North Cambridge.

The woman told hospital authorities she had "hurt her leg" in a fall downstairs at the house of a friend in Somerville.

After diagnosing the fracture, hospital surgeons expressed amazement that the woman could have traveled afoot from the scene of the accident to the point where the police found her.

Mountain Girl, 12, Weds Man 28

LOGAN, W. Va., Nov. 11 (AP)—A 12-year-old mountain lass and her 28-year-old husband set up housekeeping today in their "honeymoon cottage"—an abandoned store building—while Logan county authorities studied possible action against the newlyweds and the bride's mother.

The couple, Helen Gliddas and Clifford Adkins, were married yesterday in the little southern West Virginia community of Chapmanville, across the mountain from Curry, where the bride and bridegroom went to live with her mother and a 10-year-old brother.

Mrs. W. T. Mitchell, a relief worker, reported the wedding to Prosecutor Claude A. Joyce and added:

"She looked for all the world like any other little girl dressed up to play 'mama.'"

Herter Seen House Speaker

When the recently-elected House of Representatives is organized, Representative Christian A. Herter of Boston will be the speaker, according to the dopesters.

Even the dopesters don't pretend to know who will be the next president of the Senate.

Three strong contenders seem to be running neck-and-neck. They are Senator Joseph R. Cotton of Lexington, Senator Donald W. Nicholson of Wareham and Senator Arthur W. Hollis of Newton.

Until yesterday, a fourth contender was Senator Angier L. Goodwin of Melrose. He withdrew and threw his support and all the votes he could induce to follow him to Senator Cotton.

Rumors at the State House were that he planned to make Cotton president and take over the floor leadership himself.

While the formal vote won't be held until the first of the year, the matter will be settled by a canvass to be conducted within a few days, and proponents of all three candidates are busy shopping around for support.

Samuel H. Wragg, retiring president of the Senate, and high sheriff-elect of Norfolk, has not put his blessing on any of the candidates. He is staying out of it.

While the Republicans in the House are not unanimous in the matter, it is not expected Representative Herter will encounter much opposition in his try for the speakership.

He is president of the Republican Club of Massachusetts, and one of the most active party men in the state.

8 Court Bill Foes Re-elected

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP) — Eight of nine Democratic senators up for re-election this year who opposed the Roosevelt court bill have won new six-year terms.

Senator Augustine Lonergan of Connecticut was the only one to go down to defeat either in the primaries or in Tuesday's election. He won renomination, but lost Tuesday to John A. Danaher, Republican.

Those re-elected are Senators Adams of Colorado, George of Georgia, Van Nuys of Indiana, Gillette of Iowa, Tydings of Maryland, Clark of Missouri, McCarran of Nevada and Smith of South Carolina.

Re-elected at 80 For Four-Year Term

ROCHESTER, Ind., Nov. 11 (AP)—William Ewing, who at 80 has spent more than half his adult life as justice of the peace of Rochester township (Fulton County), looked forward today to his ninth straight four-year term in that office.

Returns showed Ewing, a Republican, re-elected Tuesday. In 32 years in office, he has weathered a series of Democratic landslides.

Boston Voted 'Yes' On All Questions

Complete tabulation of Tuesday's vote today revealed that Boston had voted "yes" on every referendum on the ballot.

The affirmative votes favored biennial sessions of the Legislature, free public taxi stands, liquor, betting on horse and dog races, and exclusion of married women from public employment.

His Nose Knows Curley Was Licked

He pushed a peanut along the Broadway in South Boston to pay off an election bet on former Governor Curley. A delighted throng was panicked when he kicked up his heels and hee-hawed like the Democratic donkey.

John D.'s 'Revenge'

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 (INS)—The fine art of sidewalk kibitzing was officially recognized today with the opening of a "clubhouse" for the guys who like to watch other fellows work.

The clubhouse is 100 feet long and it overlooks the excavation for a new 16-story building for Rockefeller Center. It has a railing and a roof and it's wired for lighting for the convenience at night of the members of the "Sidewalk Superintendents' Club."

Over the entrances appear the motto: "The best pilots stand on the shore."

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., it is said, got the idea after he was asked to "move on"

Election 'All Right,' Says F. R.

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—If President Roosevelt feels any deep disappointment or sense of defeat over Tuesday's election, he failed utterly to show it today.

Facing a semi-circle of reporters for the first time since the Democrats lost heavily in the off-year balloting, the President was his usual beaming and confident self.

He appeared in high good humor as he parried questions and exchanged wisecracks with the newsmen.

CALLS IT "ALL RIGHT"

Asked what he thought of the election, he replied:

"All right."

Pressing the point, a newspaperman said he understood the President had been asked by some political associates what his attitude would be toward Democratic candidates who opposed the New Deal in the primaries, and whether Mr. Roosevelt had been in the position of "a benevolent neutral" in the election results.

He answered with a [illegible]

Another asked whether in the light of the results the White House expected to encounter a combination of Republicans and conservative Democrats in the coming 76th Congress.

Again the President's reply was a brief "No."

The questioner said he did and the President [illegible]

[illegible]

"Well, that's the way it is," he said.

REVEALS GUESSES

There was [illegible] on the [illegible] and [illegible].

The President was asked about [illegible] which he [illegible] and said he would [illegible] some of the [illegible].

In the course of [illegible] he said he had based his [illegible] on the [illegible] whereas they [illegible] and [illegible].

He was [illegible] New York where [illegible] H. Lehman had been [illegible] over Thomas E. Dewey, and the senatorial races were [illegible] Senator Wagner and Rep. James M. Mead, [illegible] he had guessed them [illegible] as they came out.

He did make an attempt to explain the [illegible] results.

Another question concerned [illegible] Wagner bill which was [illegible] heavily by the Republicans in the campaign. The President was asked whether he considered the Wagner act [illegible] and if so, [illegible] it.

APPOINTMENTS DUE

He replied that it was [illegible] impossible [illegible] to be made [illegible] Supreme Court [illegible] had been [illegible] and [illegible] of the [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible] Supreme Court [illegible].

[illegible] expected an early [illegible] to be named.

"Yes, on the third of January."

The President [illegible] the [illegible] of calling the new Congress [illegible] 75th into session [illegible] the 76th takes over.

There probably will be some [illegible] appointments in the course of the next week, it was said. He declined to [illegible] if they would include a Supreme Court appointment.

Roosevelt Plans Parley To Discuss Deal Moves

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (INS)—President Roosevelt will confer with congressional Democratic leaders at Warm Springs, Ga., starting next month on the consideration of the administration's legislative program for the next session.

This was disclosed today by House Democratic Leader Sam Rayburn of Texas after a brief White House visit.

"I believe the Democrats will go along with the program," he observed.

Crash Injures 2 In Cambridge

Taken to Cambridge City Hospital were George Hannan, 40, Huron avenue, Cambridge, suffering from a fractured pelvis, and Harvey Young, 36, of the same address, who sustained a possible fractured leg.

They were passengers in one of the cars driven prior to the accident by Miss Elizabeth Moore, 21, of Temple street, Watertown. She was not hurt.

The operator of the other car, according to police, John A. High, 51, of Garden street, Cambridge, also escaped injury. Both machines were badly damaged.

War Over? They Didn't Believe It

By FRED PERKINS

The Old Man's rear rubber said: "Heine is dumping some GI cans just down the road, Colonel.

SUMMERFIELD'S
BOSTON SOMERVILLE and WALTHAM STORES
OPEN FRIDAY 1 P. M. TO 9 P. M.

This is kind of a dangerous time to get started."

Any other day the Old Man would have jumped his brown derby.

"Hrrmph! Hrrmph! This is a dangerous war."

But today he said:

"Well, this would be a hell of a morning to be killed. We'll wait until that Boche battery taxs off."

SHE'IS AT CROSSROADS

So it was a quarter of an hour later we got the Old Man aboard what was left of the Dodge. Concussion from close shell bursts had blown all the glass out of it and it looked more like a convertible than a sedan. But it would run.

The MP at the crossroads was the private consol with just two more stacking cans. So we stood up for a couple of minutes until the Austrian Jew that were lined up "for cartier a dance" that's how he salutes it.

Then we lighted just there like a lot out of whatsis, with the Old Man hrrmph-hrrmphing as he got a lungful of the high explosive reek.

He hadn't ought to have been out at Dodge's drizzle anyhow on account of he was all limped up with a recent hellful of mustard gas and a bum knee where a cossack had knocked him into a post office cellar. Incidentally, that "mercy" business went over big.

OLD MAN RIDING HIGH

Furthermore he wasn't as young as he had been when he went over the wall at Pekin in the Boxer rebellion. And the malaria he picked up in the Philippines never did him any good, either.

This morning though he was riding high.

For he was telling of the world war that I wasn't even the right.

There was a doughboy outfit coming up. They were slogging along in the dirtiest of the trees of the road would give out a cheer when Heine decided to lay a few 77-cm. there for luck.

It wasn't any healthy place to be for the Old Man were pulled up.

The whole big parade & the wars that fought it over the world were just petty put-outs to the one in France.

He remembered enough of the books at West Point after 40 years, so he knew the guns waiting future historians would have something to say about what the outfit had done at Chateau Thierry, the Vesle, St. Mihiel and here north of the Meuse, after crossing the river at Dun and after Cunel and Septsarges and Pres de Fleur.

We knew the show was over.

HISTORIC MOMENT

And he was going break the news.

He was going be able to tell his grandchildren back home how he was the Paul Revere of Laugney to Worcester.

So he stacks that iron old fighting mug of his out where the window of the Dodge used to be and he speaks to those doughboys. He says:

"The war's over, lads! The war's over! An armistice goes into effect at 11 o'clock."

The couplikens heard him all right. But they'd been through too much since dark the night before.

They'd lost some buddies back west, the Heine heavies piled their 2's in by the hour.

They hadn't eaten since yesterday noon. And what was left of a fifth division outfit going back had to run on how things was ahead.

WISECRACK SCORNED

They was in no frame of mind to laugh at wisecracks.

So they just slogged along and tried to ignore the Old Man. He hadn't seen his engineers since we came into the line at Essen and he had on a buck private's old, fuzzy new issue House of Wrinkled from going through the cleaning machine.

But he wasn't going be cheated of his big minute. He hrrmphs and hrrmps and manages to get that old parade ground voice of his unlimbered.

"Men," he roars, "the war's over! The Heinies have quit. There'll be no more fighting. The guns'll stop at 11 o'clock!"

Just then we heard it coming. The colonel's dog rubber nose for the ditch out of one door. I dove out the other.

Whee-ee-eee! WHANG!

That one landed six feet off the road at self mind. If it had had been around the Old Man's clothing, he would have been buried in his private latrine feathers.

Me and the Colonel's dog rubber came out of the ditch and looked the house dust and stones off the road in front of the Dodge.

JUST NOT ANY USE

The engine was still running.

The Old Man opened his mouth to say one more time. The wars ever lads but even he knew it wasn't any use.

The doughboys was picking themselves up and putting their packs up so as to get the straps off the blistered places on their shoulders.

They gave us and the Old Man a few dirty looks.

One big buck with a wad of tobacco in his jaw hawked out loud and spat.

He jerked his head at the colonel.

"Too bad," he grunted, "but these old guys just can't take it."

Thousands See Vets Parade

crack regiments of the Massachusetts national Guard, and auxiliary organizations.

Almost equally colorful was the Veterans of Foreign Wars parade which was still winding through downtown streets when tolling bells and thudding, distant cannon marked 11 o'clock, the hour the guns fell silent in France, November 11, 1918!

SONS JOIN VETERANS

Perhaps because "20 years after" seemed to mean more than other phrases of other times today's marching veterans weren't in a sky-larking mood.

At their shoulders strode the unseen shades of former comrades in stained and faded khaki and horizon blue.

But with no 20-year-old memories to sadden them, today's other marchers, sons and daughters of soldiers and sailors of 1918, gaily stole the show.

With a swing to their quicksteps their daddies couldn't match, the brightly-uniformed juvenile drill teams, fife and drum corps and bands drew repeated cheers from throngs that lined the two parade routes.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars marchers formed in Boylston street, Back Bay, then tramped through Arlington, Boylston, Tremont West, Washington, Water and Congress streets to Dock square.

HONOR FALLEN HEROES

Then they swung back past City Hall and State House to Charles street and the Common, for exercises at Parkman band stand.

Halts were made for memorial services at James F. Mahoney square, at Boylston and Tremont streets and at Norman Prince square on Congress street.

MAYOR VIEWS PARADE

At City Hall, the Veterans of Foreign Wars parade was reviewed by Mayor Tobin and guests of honor, including Gene Tunney, former heavyweight boxing champion.

An ex-marine, Tunney came to Boston to attend last night's big ball given by the United States Marine Corps League.

Also on the reviewing stand at City Hall was Soldiers Relief Commissioner Herman L. Bush.

Wounded in action on the west front Nov. 7 1918, he was near death in a field hospital on Armistice Day 20 years ago.

The American Legion parade biggest of the two, followed the big Elks' crowd as residents of Boston suburbs poured into the downtown district, stores opened and the normal activity of the city was resumed.

The Legion line of march was from Hereford street along Commonwealth avenue to Arlington street, Boylston street, Tremont street, Temple place, Washington street, School street, Beacon street and back to Arlington street.

A feature of the day's program was a memorial service held at the State House by World War Mothers of New England.

REUNIONS STAGED

Schools, banks, business offices and state and city departments remained closed all day.

Veterans organizations in scores of communities in and outside Greater Boston staged parades reunion dinners and entertainments.

On the Common and at the State House exercises staged by the World War Mothers, Mayor Tobin urged support for a national defense program which would give the United States "invincible strength on land, at sea and in the air."

U. S. Hails Armistice Day

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—President Roosevelt gave the nation's homage today to the Unknown Soldier who rests in Arlington cemetery.

He motored from the White House to the tomb of the soldier symbolic of America's war dead and, with high dignitaries and plain people looking on, presented a wreath of white chrysanthemums at the marble sarcophagus.

The President stood at solemn attention while a bugler, a Capitan Detail of Marines stepped forward with the wreath, then muffled drums roared out the time and an army bugler sounded Taps.

Directly after the President's departure honor guards of the Marine Corps, Navy and Army saluted their unknown companion.

Pershing advocated an adequate, properly trained and equipped army, supported by a [illegible] industry.

Anti-War Solons Of '17 Still Back 'Hands Off' Plan

The following articles were written exclusively for International News Service by two of the three remaining members of Congress who voted against America's entry into the World War in 1917.

By ERNEST LUNDEEN
U. S. Senator of Minnesota

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 11 (INS)—Today the American people observe the 20th anniversary of the Armistice which ended the World War.

Problems of social security such as old age pensions, unemployment insurance press for settlement today in the domestic field.

The total unemployment figures stand somewhere between twelve and fifteen million. Our financial condition needs immediate attention along lines of economy and budget balancing. We are heavy in debt.

Our experience of 1917 and 1918 should have taught us to keep out of the quarrels and conflicts of Europe.

By HAROLD KNUTSON
U. S. Representative of Minnesota

PARK RAPIDS, Minn., Nov. 11 (INS)—I have not changed my position of 21 years ago and I would again oppose America's entry into hostile conflicts in Europe.

Wars have settled nothing. They have left the world demoralized, and bankrupted. [illegible] right and war [illegible] ility for [illegible] war.

In this critical hour American people must exercise restraint, thought and calm [illegible] ing that flows from Europe [illegible] is created to influence public opinion in America.

Where They Stand—After 20 Years

LONDON, Nov. 11 (AP)—Ten front page features of the Armistice Day 1918 and the Armistice Day 1938 tell a striking story of Europe's twenty year post-war era.

Here is the way the story unfolded today in terms of personalities who where "then" and "now."

KING GEORGE OF ENGLAND—Then Prince Albert, a lieutenant pilot of the Royal Flying Corps, soon due in France. Today he stood before the cenotaph in Whitehall leading his people in tribute to the empire's war dead.

ADOLPH HITLER—Unchallenged Fuehrer of eighty million Germans in 1918 a Bavarian corporal lying in Pasewalk Hospital suffering from the effects of gas.

PRIME MINISTER CHAMBERLAIN—Virtually unknown politically when the war ended, was preparing to his first seat in Parliament. Now a world leader, bent upon "peace in our time."

PREMIER MUSSOLINI—Now firm master of Italy, was recovering 20 years ago from wounds suffered as a corporal in the Austro-Hungarian front.

FIELD MARSHAL GOERING OF GERMANY—Today famed as Hitler's right hand man. On the first armistice day was commander of the famed Richthofen air squadron, and refused to surrender the planes to Americans.

THE DUKE OF WINDSOR—Bachelor Prince of Wales serving with the British army in France 20 years ago today, with his American born wife the former King Edward VIII awaited an armistice day reunion in Paris with his brother the Duke of Gloucester.

DAVID LLOYD GEORGE OF ENGLAND—The aging but still keen statesman at the height of his power as wartime premier when the armistice came to end fighting Britain's enemies, including the present fuehrer.

MARSHAL HENRI PETAIN—Famed French leader of Verdun was attached to the staff of the late Marshal Foch when the armistice was signed in a sleeping car in Compiegne Forest. Today he had a piece with Premier Albert Lebrun of France and others at the triumphal arch in Paris to review troops.

PREMIER EDOUARD DALADIER—Now at the helm of the French nation, member of the "Big Four" of Munich. On Nov. 11 of statesman was a lieutenant in the French army 20 years ago.

FORMER KAISER WILHELM—On the first armistice day an exile on a chateau at Amerongen, the Netherlands, after abdicating the German imperial throne. Today was a simple day in lonely Doorn Manor, his sanctuary through the years.

British Honor Dead Veterans

LONDON, Nov. 11 (AP)—Britain honored her soldier dead today mindful of two wars, one that ended two decades ago and one that did not break out last month.

King George VI led the nation in the World War Armistice Day services at the foot of the cenotaph in Whitehall.

Trenches nearby and along his route to the cenotaph boldly dug in parks in the last days of September were reminders of the war that did not start, averted by the Munich agreement.

Empire [illegible] with the rest of industry [illegible] in the [illegible] ritual of silence [illegible] prepare British defenses against the day when war [illegible] again.

TRAIN HURTS PROVE FATAL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (INS)—A $4000 minimum annual income for every American family can be achieved through concerted action of labor, government and industry, the American Federation of Labor asserted today.

The statement declares:

"The captains of industry created mass production, but they could not build up a mass market able to absorb the production of high powered industry plants.

Glass Needle Starts 'Birth'

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 11—Science opened a new chapter in the mysteries of human reproduction today, with a test tube experiment in which a sharp-pointed, solid glass needle usurped the role of "father."

The needle pricked an unfertilized human ovum in the way which develops life in a baby. The ovum, [illegible] began reproduction. It cast off two small globes called polar bodies and formed an ovum which was declared to be the start of [illegible].

Dividing of the ovum, the two into four and so on is the way a fertilized germ cell grows.

The experiment, the first in the history of science on human material, was reported to the Philadelphia Pathological Society last night by Stanley P. Reimann, M. D. and Bernard J. Muller of the Lankenau Hospital Research Institute.

LIVED SIX HOURS

The ovum was obtained from a woman during a surgical operation. A few thousandths of an inch in diameter, it lived for about six hours under a microscope while it played its little drama in a drop of clear serum from human blood.

It died apparently from lack of [illegible] the experimenter.

"Mr. Muller," said Dr. Stanley, "is now experimenting to find a medium in which the ovum will live longer, we hope as much as 24 hours."

Since June of 1936 President Ham announced the college has received $2,500,000 in gifts and bequests. The largest single gift was $200,000 from Mrs. Emily Frances Abby for a new dormitory.

Marriage School Planned By Minister in Chicago

CHICAGO, Nov. 11 (AP)—A "marriage school" will be conducted at the Drexel Park Presbyterian Church by the Rev. Clinton C. Cox for young people who want to know how to get married, stay married and be happy, too.

The Rev. Mr. Cox said today representatives of young people's groups in his church had asked that "marriage be brought out in the open for discussion."

Subjects on the curriculum include:

"Meeting the Prospects."
"The Danger of Flirtation."
"Where to Go—How Much to Spend."
"The Hide and Seek Attitude."
"The Engagement Period."
"Limits and Liberties."
"Wedding Service."
"Elopements."
"Burn the Bridges—Stay Married."

The Rev. Mr. Cox invited submission of data on the various topics by experienced members of his congregation.

"Boston After Dark," by George Holland, appears every day in the Boston American.

GOP Beaten By WPA Cash

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Nov. 11—Tuesday's election that resulted in New Mexico remaining in the New Deal lineup was accepted here as a "matter of course."

Democratic candidates were given an early scare, however, when the first returns indicated the races would be close.

Republican leaders attribute the Democratic success to the political system said to have been installed by the Democrats in Works Progress Administration relief throughout the state.

"We couldn't beat 40 million dollars," said one G. O. P. leader.

Now the election has passed New Mexicans have resumed their current topic of discussion the WPA scandal.

Additional affidavits from WPA workers who claim they were "jobbed" are said to have reached U. S. District Attorney Everet Grantham.

Reports are everywhere that hundreds of WPA workers have been "told" to "keep quiet."

PROBE GOES ON

But the investigation is far from being over.

Operatives from the Federal Bureau of Investigation—G-Men—are said to be collecting additional information.

Republican party affiliates experienced difficulty in getting on the WPA, regardless of their need, according to reports.

When they were taken on, so the stories go, they were often sent to New Mexico's "Devil's Island," the Chaneas Dam project, at Tucumcari.

None were assigned to "boondoggling" jobs, it is said.

WPA activities were shifted from low to at least second gear after the general jury acted, reports declare.

TOLD TO "QUIT PARTY"

Strangely, only the grade separation job here, one of three in the state for which the WPA allocated $475,000, escaped material pilferage according to the affidavits held by Grantham.

No one apparently has an explanation for it.

In instances where a man with party affiliations other than Republican had a sufficient "in" to get on as a WPA truckman, report states, he would be told:

"You'll have to resign from your party; there are no politics in the WPA, you know."

The whole WPA scandal recalls to the older people here the early days of New Mexico, when rival candidates stood personally by the ballot boxes each had his own—and pay for votes as they were cast.

STRIKE CLOSES MINES

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 11 (INS)—Nine thousand employes of two Anglo-American owned power companies are on strike today, paralyzing the mining industries in two Mexican states.

Invite Public To Nature Walk

Commissioner Lorna C. Hill, Ward Edward L. Farrell, former Harvard track coach, who heads the Division of Recreation of the Metropolitan District Commission and the WPA announced today that the nature walk on Sunday will be held at Echo Bridge.

This walk will be a leisurely jaunt over Echo bridge and westward along the Sudbury river viaduct toward Wellesley. Harry George Higbee, staff naturalist, will lead the walk and will point out interesting nature highlights en route.

This affair, which is opened to all the public, is scheduled to begin at Newton Upper Falls entrance to Hemlock Gorge Reservation on the Newton-Wellesley town line, at 2 p. m.

Drive Opened By Red Cross

The Boston metropolitan chapter of the American Red Cross launched its drive to enroll new members today.

In accordance with long established custom the Red Cross starts its roll call drive on Armistice Day and extends it through Thanksgiving Day, which this year falls on November 24.

"I am confident," said Chairman Ralph Lowell of the roll call committee, "that our appeal to the people of Greater Boston will meet with a most generous response and the necessary support will be given to carry on the work for the year ahead."

Rudy Honored

The feud between Rudy Vallee and the Boston press photographers had been resolved into a beautiful peace today. The Boston Press Photographers' Association decided Rudy was not to blame for an argument with a photographer some time ago.

So they elected Rudy an honorary member.

tiers, and recited imagined dirt about the guards' families.

Early in the day, they took to panning the cons who hadn't come in, but the leaders stopped that, they remembered that names called during the first two strikes had built up a lot of hard feeling among cons and had brought on dozens of fights.

COULDN'T SLEEP

Those who weren't in couldn't sleep, of course—and that was one object of the strikers' continual howling; they wanted to tire out the other cons and get them in on it.

Guards offered to let the non-strikers sleep in the shops, instead of in their cells, but nobody took that up; there was too much excitement, and nerves were too stirred up for anybody to sleep.

It was on the third day of the strike that a character named Lafayette D. Thomas punched and danced his way into a safe spot.

Known as "Forty Year Tommy" because of the time he's doing and because no con would dare call him "Lafayette," he had learned how to handle his dukes as an amateur boxer in the army. He handled them that day, and tossed in some nice foot-handling to boot.

Having stayed out of the strike for two days to rib others to come in, he came in himself by failing to report to work. Three guards [illegible] along and ordered him to strip. He stripped, but not fast enough. One guard spun him around and Tommy went to work.

He hung a short right on the screw's eye and dropped him. Another screw stepped in and Tommy uncorked one that spun him around, tore all the skin off one side of his face and took him out of the squabble.

The third screw was moving in with his gas-billy raised when Tommy upped with his foot and gave him a heel where it would do the most damage.

GOT AWAY WITH IT

They still pat Tommy on the back as the only con in history who ever worked over three armed guards while naked and got away with it.

The story among the cons is that Tommy was never punished because the deputy warden [illegible] the whole thing and thought it was such a good joke on the three guards that he didn't have the heart to "shoot" Tommy.

Whether that's true or not I wouldn't know, but the fact is that the deputy walked up to Tommy while the three screws were still dazed and said:

"All right, Tommy, get into that cell." And Tommy picked up his clothes and got.

About the third day, while the late comers were still coming in the weak sisters began going [illegible]—the weak sisters and the big shots who had done their allotted duty just by going in.

You could hear the weak ones declaring themselves by yelling to their buddies:

"I can't take it any more; I'm weakening; I'm going out."

Apparently the deputy and the screws were waiting for this first sign of weakening. They took advantage of it by applying the old stomach psychology, in the flesh.

Screws would come strutting along the gallery and stop in front of a cell and hold out a sandwich and lift up the top slice of bread and lay bare a slab of ham and a fried egg.

Then they'd put the top piece back, and take a bite, and chew and look at the ceiling, and say:

"It's good, but I'm so full I just can't eat any more."

And they'd toss the sandwich over the railing.

CONS RAVED

The cons, who had been on bread and water for three days, raved like maniacs, but the screws just made some remark about "plenty of good food when you come out" and lighted up cigarettes.

It wasn't long before most of them were asking a guard to bring them a request slip—a typewritten form on which the con asks to be taken out and on which he promises not to make any more trouble.

Although the stomach-psychology got most of them, there were some who not only went on a sit-down strike but also made it a hunger strike.

Hospital attendants took care of them by forced feeding. One of them, Phil Demanzie, bank robber from the East, gave them a good battle and swears to this day that the forced feeding they gave him wrecked his stomach by punching holes in it.

Five days after the strike was called, its back was broken and most of the strikers were in the mess line, looking at that stew as if it was a porterhouse steak.

A few—about thirty, I'd say—held out about ten days longer. Eighteen that I know of hung on for months. Four or five were still on strike for commissary, newspapers and pay when I left the Rock.

ACCOMPLISHED NOTHING

As far as anybody can see, the strike accomplished absolutely nothing, except to put a lot of cons on ice, and get some of them sapped up, and take away a lot of "good time" and yard privileges from guys who need both.

But riot or strike, it isn't going to do any con any good. The Rock is still the Rock, and its rules are still the toughest in America.

These rules aren't going to soften up, ever, as long as the cons try to force it. The administration doesn't dare give an inch because [illegible] the minute it does [illegible] going to start asking [illegible] and striking for [illegible].

(While the strike of September, 1937, was in progress, Warden James Johnston was slugged and beaten by Barton "Whitey" Phillips, doing life for kidnaping during a bank robbery.

(Why and how Phillips slugged the warden will be related by Reed tomorrow.)

Belgian King Ill, Brother Marks Day

BRUSSELS, Nov. 11 (AP)—Influenza kept King Leopold from Belgium's Armistice Day ceremony today and Prince [illegible] his brother, took his place [illegible] a wreath on the tomb of the unknown warrior.

Memory of Yesterday—Members of Hoyt Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, take part in colorful parade that marks two decades of peace . . . since the armistice was signed. Girls and boys . . . sons and daughters . . . step out in stiffly military manner . . . with graying fathers who remember France . . . and war . . . 20 years ago.

1918 -:- ARMISTICE DAY -:- 1938

TWENTY YEARS AGO today the world emerged from the hell of war into which both the mistakes and ideals of humanity had cast most of the civilized nations of the earth.

Twenty years ago today the boys STARTED HOME.

Not all of them.

Of the FOUR AND ONE-HALF MILLION MEN mobilized by the United States in the World War more than 350,000 were listed as CASUALTIES, including the 126,000 who were killed in action or died of wounds or disease.

No, not all of the boys CAME HOME.

Thousands of them, as Abraham Lincoln once said of the gloried American dead of the Civil War, gave their lives THAT THEIR NATION MIGHT LIVE.

Other thousands came home broken in body, health and spirit, blinded and maimed, as the PRICE OF THEIR DEVOTION.

But, THANK GOD, most of our boys DID COME HOME, whole and safe.

• • •

THE FLOWER of American young manhood came out of that cruel welter of fire and bloodshed, that needless and senseless holocaust of confusion and destruction and blind hate and brutal passion, tried and PROVEN.

Twenty years ago WE GOT OUR BOYS BACK.

For twenty years they have been serving their country in the crises and struggles of peace as they served it in war.

These millions of sturdy young men who once went through a terrifying war, upholding the traditions and principles of their country, ready and willing to DIE FOR THEM as so many of their comrades DID, are now the workers and citizens of their country, the professional men and artisans and leaders, living up to and STANDING FOR the great and imperishable patriotic traditions and principles that are historically AMERICAN.

• • •

WE LOOK BACK twenty years at a sublime PINNACLE OF PATRIOTISM to which the young men of the nation rose, unquestioning and irresistably.

WE LOOK OVER twenty years of continuing and enlightened public service, in which this splendid body of men has taken over and immeasurably ENHANCED the great heritage of a free nation.

WE LOOK AHEAD to a future which is made bright and promising, more sure of prosperity and peace than that of any other country, because the unselfish and unending patriotic services of THESE BOYS WHO CAME HOME have given us the indestructible FOUNDATIONS for prosperity and peace.

Let the country THANK GOD that these boys came back.

Let the people of the United States in their gratitude for their free institutions that have been preserved and in their humbleness BEFORE GOD, reverently remember those who died in the service of their country and whole-heartedly honor those who LIVED TO SERVE.

• • •

THIS TWENTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF OUR RETURN TO PEACE could not be better observed than in tribute to THE BOYS WHO CAME BACK.

For none of our people have labored with more patriotic constancy or more unflinching determination to uphold democratic ideals and to frustrate the sinister purposes of Communism and Fascism.

None have been more loyal to the spirit and principles of the Constitution, in which the institutions of American democracy were conceived and given substance.

None have given greater service to the nation, by awakening those to whom the nation's work and destiny are now entrusted to an INSPIRED PATRIOTISM, and by inculcating appreciation and love for America in the hearts of children, to whom the nation's work and destiny must later be entrusted.

By inspiration and EXAMPLE, these men have become a bulwark of FOUR SQUARE AMERICANISM; in themselves constituting a vital and alert GENERATION OF PATRIOTS, and through our children whom they faithfully instructed in American precepts and ideals assuring the nation of a continuing SUCCESSION OF PATRIOTS.

SEE THE NEW CARS

The Editor Says:—Each year we see the new automobiles: each year we say to ourselves, "Here is the peak of perfection. Surely nothing can excel this."

But the next year DOES EXCEL the year before, and when we see the new models of 1939 at the Mechanics' Building exhibition tomorrow and during the approaching week, we shall once again behold excellence made more excellent.

The automotive industry has equipped itself to build BETTER AUTOMOBILES, with an abiding confidence that the people will buy them.

It has put hundreds of thousands of men back to work, not in merely filling orders, but with firm assurance that there will be orders.

It is anticipating conditions in the country that will justify reemployment and expansion and expenditures for the BETTER product.

It is creating buying power and consumer demand.

Not content to lag behind America, or even to go ahead with America, it is SHOWING THE WAY TO AMERICA.

Nothing better typifies the American spirit than this persistent determination of a great industry to get out ahead of the recovery parade.

This is the spirit the Boston Automobile Show exemplifies, forcefully and convincingly.

We urge all to go to this inspiring exhibition and see the 1939 cars.

The automobile doubles the value of a man's time and thus doubles the value of his life.

It brings happiness to his entire family, providing health and pleasure for every member.

It brings the greatness of the nation within easy reach; the grandeur of the hills, the beauty and coolness of the seaside.

Truly, the automobile is the AMERICAN'S OTHER HOME—his house on wheels, moving in obedience to his will.

Let all New England see the new cars, AND BUY THEM.

The Human Side of the News

Why They Freed Pat Crowe

By EDWIN C. HILL

Copyright, 1938, King Features Synd., Inc.

WE ARE SHOCKED by latter-day perversions of justice, racketeers getting free, sensational "circus" trials, and shady lawyers' tricks.

We bemoan the lost dignity and puissance of the law. It might be worse—in fact it has been.

The death of Pat Crowe, shaky old Powery bum, who 34 years ago kidnaped Edward Cudahy, Jr., in Omaha, is a reminder of a trial which makes the most raffish of our modern courtroom workouts a model of propriety and just procedure in comparison.

CROWE collected a $25,000 ransom and disappeared. Five years later he surrendered, at Butte, Montana. He all but confessed the kidnaping and the state had enough evidence to sink a battleship. The jury, after arguing 17 hours, brought in a verdict of "not guilty."

Pat went on his way and in his old age cadged a living with the tear-jerking story of the reformed kidnaper who would save souls and rid the world of crime.

The explanation of that verdict is an interesting item in the history of these democratic States. The 15-year-old Cudahy boy was the heir to the Cudahy meat-packing fortune.

What this Omaha jury particularly hated was meat-packers. Crowe's admissions and all the evidence melted like a snowball in the heat of that prejudice.

No longer do we find inflamed social issues sideswiping juries as they did in the Crowe trial, the Moyer, Heywood and Pettibone trial in Montana and other great criminal law tourneys of an earlier day.

J. Edgar Hoover, the G-man, has done much to put law enforcement on its merits.

With our unique and growing American system of "blue ribbon" juries, we are isolating law enforcement from bigotry and prejudice.

What troubles us now is the durable old "fix," which Mr. Hoover has found is apt to be in, now as in yesteryear. Progress has been made in that, too, and, in my opinion, there has been a definite and encouraging advance in law enforcement since the boom days of thuggery at the peak of the bootlegging era.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

IT'S JUST TWENTY years since they declared peace. We've had trouble ever since. Looks like things would have been more neighborly if they had kept on fighting.

WARS AND COLDS are easier to get than to stop. Nobody knows just how to end one or where Bismarck urged the German Emperor not to march through Paris and Pershing urged the Allies to Scram to Berlin. Neither one was right.

A PEACE TREATY is merely a test to see if the clever diplomats can actually read and write. An armistice is a breathing spell in short gasps. Thus millions who should be alive are dead.

THE DEMOCRATIC nations seem to have backed up a trifle in their efforts to stave off another war. We are always willing to turn the other cheek if it hasn't got a gumboil on it. In the meantime, we accept the two minutes of silence as an earnest promise of more to come. We gave Prohibition a fair trial of 12 years and peace is far more important.

THERE IS NOT THE SLIGHTEST PROOF THAT GOD EVER INTENDED US TO FEAR EVILDENS WHICH WE COULD ELIMINATE. TO THE CONTRARY, THERE IS ENDLESS EVIDENCE TO SHOW THAT THE FAVORS ARE FOR THE FIGHTERS—AND THE REWARDS FOR THOSE WHO REBEL AGAINST MUCK AND MISERY.

WHEREFORE I'M CONVINCED THAT IF WE'D SPEND A THIRD AS MUCH TIME CLEANING UP THE CLOUDS AS WE DO IN LOOKING FOR THEIR SILVER LININGS, LIFE WOULD BE A MUCH SWELLER PROPOSITION ALL AROUND.

AND NEVER has that fact been as apparent—or that obligation been as pressing—as it is today. We are in the midst of international brutalities, betrayals, barbarisms. Honor has been fouled . . . decency has been thrown overboard. Our whole human record smells to high heaven. No thoughtful person can contemplate this with serenity . . . no self-respecting person can feel anything but outraged and heartsick.

'2nd M'Cormack' Plans Hub Debut

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 (INS)—There is an Irishman in New York today who will admit that he is the future John McCormack, another good Irishman with another grand tenor voice.

brilliant Dan McCormack.

"I really got my start as a singer because my mother had a grand voice. She always wanted me to sing. Then I sang with the Passionist Fathers in Dublin, where I was introduced to Dr. Vincent O'Brien.

"Dr. O'Brien trained McCormack, you know, and Dr. O'Brien tells me that I have promise of being even greater than that fine Irish gentleman. I hope so.

"Then, there is Mary—Mary Coffey of Dublin. We did not have a piano in our house, but Mary had a piano, and day after day she would play for me as I practiced.

"I hope Mary can join me. She has blue eyes and is just about as tall as a girl should be—would you say five feet four inches? Well, maybe."

Martha Washington Hair-Do Peace-Maker

Introducing the Martha Washington. No, it isn't a dance. It's a new hair comb.

Factually, it's the feminine version of Our First President's hair-do. And so it was named after His Martha.

It'll probably bring peace into the armed camps of the high-dos versus the low-dos and put an end to the revolution in the feminine ranks, because it's a welcoming compromise.

It'll mean the signing of the armistice. So today appropriately was chosen for its debut.

Just the thing for your Armistice Evening celebration. For details on the new coiffure: Pile up on the sides, and top an sausage curls; it's page boy in back, or varied with a bow in back for evening and first saw the light of day in Boston.

2 Rescue Man in Car Under Water

Diving into Pines river, Saugus, after they saw an auto forced from the highway into the water, two motorists rescued George Wyatt, 48, of Lincoln avenue, Saugus, from drowning early today.

Wyatt was driving toward Boston on the Lynn marsh road when a car without lights forced his machine over the bank.

He was trapped in his completely submerged car attempting to open a window as Horace V. Kyes of Chatham street, Lynn, and Arthur Gaskell, "News of the Day" newsboy, came ashore at the accident scene.

Kyes jumped into the water, breaking a rear window of the submerged car and dragging Wyatt to the surface. Gaskell then swam to the men and helped pull them to shore.

In trying to reach Wyatt, Kyes received deep gashes in his right hand. At Lynn Hospital, where he is under treatment for the cuts and immersion, Kyes was said to face the loss of two fingers.

"He's got to earn at least $18 a week."

FIGURES IT OUT

She was very positive about that, very, and she added that she figured it all out. That was what they had to have.

"Oh, and then I want him to take me away—far away, where nobody'll ever know about me and baby, where we can start all over and really live a good life.

"Are we so bad? Did we do anything so horrible? Oh, we've got to have a chance."

She'd like to go to New York, or even Chicago. But she'd go just to Boston.

She wouldn't like to get married right away, that is, right after meeting the man, whoever he is.

"I'd like," she said, "to know him for at least a week first . . ."

Her mother knows all about her campaign to find a husband and nodded approval while Mary told it.

"She's a good cook," volunteered Mrs. Sylvester, "as good as there is around here. Why, her apple pie'd make your mouth water.

"We've got a lot of apples this year—on account of the storm—and she's been fixing things with 'em every day. Pies, dumplings, apple sauce, apple butter. We'll have plenty this winter."

Things are not so bad with the Sylvesters just now. Pipa had a good summer. It seemed like people had a lot of painting to be done, and now he's cutting wood all the wood from trees the storm toppled over.

But there are seven children besides Mary and the baby, and the house is none too big. There's John, he's 18, and last summer he bicycled to the farthest points all up through Maine.

He's getting ready now to pedal down to New York's World Fair.

Then there's Mac, 13, who's away in Maine now, and the little ones, Wayne, 11, Warren, 8, Mabel, 6, Marjorie, 4 and the baby, Donald, 2.

They all call Dorothea Roberts, Mary's little one, their sister, and they love her dearly. So does Mrs. Sylvester.

"Have you any rancor against the boy?" Mrs. Sylvester was asked.

"Well, I did at first," she replied, "and sometimes I do now, with him running away. But, mostly, I guess, I don't feel so bad towards him . . . But I wouldn't let Mary marry him."

"No sir, not now!"

Mary is proud of her cooking, too, so proud that she doesn't believe anyone around can make a better pot of spaghetti. And pot roast!

IT'LL TALK TO YOU

"I can make a pot-roast," she said, with that certain degree of absolute sincerity which is heard only in the utterances of those to the kitchen born.

"I can make a pot-roast that'll get right up and talk to you, it's that good!"

So Prince Charming whoever you are Cinderella is a pot roast queen.

"There's more than cooking in marriage, though," says the little girl—and that's all she is "There's affection, and understanding, and sympathy—yes, and most important of all, there's kindness."

So calm!, she awaits her husband to be untroubled by what has happened confident of the future.

Royal Kin Visit Duke and Wally

beamed their joy at being together again.

For a long time the group chatted over luncheon in the Windsors' suite at Hotel Meurice, then they went for a drive.

In their initial public appearance together the couple smilingly posed for photographers at the hotel before entering their cars.

The Dukes Gloucester sailing stuffily erect. Windsor then but wealthy looking were in the first car, and the Duchesses in the second.

DUCHESSES HAPPY

One of the world's best dressed women the Duchess of Windsor was radiant in a tailored blue suit, blue hat, blue shoes and a rich fox fur. The ex-King's wife hardly outshone the Duchess of Gloucester, wearing a tailored brown suit and mink coat.

The two women seemed to be as genial and happy as the dukes and all repeatedly smiled and waved to the cheering throngs.

So eager were the royal people to have their initial and possibly matronal meeting in private that not even the British ambassador Sir Eric Phipps and Lady Phipps, who met the Gloucesters at Le Bourget airport accompanied them into the hotel suit.

Returning from a trip to Kenya colony, East Africa, the Gloucesters disembarked from the liner Victory of India at Marseille and flew to Le Bourget air port aboard King George's private plane piloted by Flight Lieut. F. H. Fielden, who was personal pilot for the Duke of Windsor when he was King Edward VIII.

PUBLIC BANNED

The Duke and Duchess arrived at Le Bourget at 12:40 p. m. The public was barred from the airfield and neither reporters nor photographers were permitted to approach the British royal couple.

Ambassador and Lady Phipps met the Duke and Duchess, accompanied by Secretary Thomas, a member of the British embassy staff and several members of the airport high command.

Two autos, flies Raven to a ramp adjoining the plane. The duke and the ambassador stepped into one motor car and the duchess and Lady Phipps into the other. The pairs then drove directly to the Meurice Hotel where the Windsors are stopping until they move into their new Paris villa.

The meeting occurred at 1:10 p. m. The ambassador and Lady Phipps said farewell to the royal couple in the hotel lobby whereupon the Gloucesters ascended by elevator to the Windsors suite, accompanied by a secretary.

Arrival of the Gloucesters marked the first time photographers have ever been barred from Le Bourget airport.

ROUGH PLANE LANDING

The plane made a slightly rough landing but the royal couple immediately entered the embassy automobile which proceeded to the hotel by an obscure route via Port de la Chapelle avoiding the Paris Communist belt and the famous flea market.

Both the Gloucesters wore Armistice Day poppies.

There were reports that the meeting between the two brothers and their wives resulted from the direct desire of King George to effect an open reconciliation between the British royal family and the Duke of Windsor.

Reports have been current in London that the Windsors may even visit England early next year prior to the departure of King George and Queen Elizabeth on their forthcoming Canadian tour.

Excitement was gathered near the Hotel Meurice when the Gloucesters arrived there.

Cameramen, who had been barred from the block broke through the police barriers and ran up to photograph the royal couple.

Police set upon them with truncheons and three photographers were taken to jail where they were quickly released.

The photographers immediately filed complaints, contending they had not been warned that the block had been closed.

Traffic in the vicinity was tied up as a result of the incident, but the embassy cars carrying the duke and duchess were not disturbed. They entered the hotel before the excitement began.

Boston After Dark

By GEORGE HOLLAND

EXCLUSIVE: Mayor Dewey G. Archambault of Lowell will succeed the highly popular Boston Democrat, Tom Green, as Commissioner of Civil Service under Governor Saltonstall, this column is "tipped" from a source close to the throne . . . But there will be no "purge"! . . .

GEORGE HOLLAND

HALF A HOLIDAY IS BETTER than none, and Armistice Day eve probably could classify as a "half" sort of an occasion . . . The theaters reported satisfactory business, and the night clubs seemed satisfied . . . Nye Mayhew's premiere at the Copley Plaza induced a sell-out . . . A private party attended by students of Notre Dame Academy, including Dr. G Lynch Gateway's pretty young daughter, Barbara Gately, and Marie and Frances "Sister" Ellis, Princesses of the Ancients' ex-commander, "Bud" Ellis, were among those present and dancing . . .

At the Parker House friends of Jack Smith and Jerry Sheehan, the South End cafe owners, gathered to hear and presented the pair with a superb set of tools with many modern attachments . . . It will hang in their Washington street place . . . The "X" Club, comprising officials of pleasure steamship and other transportation companies, enjoyed themselves as it Joe Sherman's at the Somerset's main ballroom . . .

Maestro Smith heads one of the Marshard-booked bands, and as Harry Marshard, one of the two brothers involved in setting up a local Music Corporation of America in Boston, was playing in the Somerset's Balinese Room, it was a simple matter for him to commute between his room and the ballroom . . . Which, in the name of service, he did.

Perhaps you have noticed that guitars or guitars (accent on the second syllable) as that instrument is called over in The Bronx have virtually disappeared from modern music combinations . . . Harry Marshard called this column's attention to the fact . . . It seems that in many cases the recorder has been substituted in instrumentation dance units . . . The accordion contributes rhythm with "rock-tone" and melody . . . Many of the guitar players have become strummers of the bass fiddle.

More About Music:—

Another instrument which is too bulky to be packed aboard a bus for trouping, but which is nevertheless a prime favorite of musical directors for the stage who can be generous in instrumenting their scores, is the melodeon . . . George MacKinnon has brought this favorite music-box to the nation's attention with a song called "Heatin' the Melodeon," a number a Broadway music firm has just published with instructions to its agents to have it well-plugged

And the score of [illegible] the new colored musical presented by Lew Leslie at the Majestic [illegible] is the music-[illegible] . . . [illegible] off [illegible] and [illegible] . . . [illegible] problematical . . .

But Jack Robbins, the Boston song-publisher, who invested $3000 in orchestrating the score, is not going to quit in his firm's attempt to make the country conscious of the "Blackbirds" music . . . "Thursday" and "Your Heart and Mine" are going to be "worked on" . . . That means you will be hearing the songs on your radio and at the cafes until copies of the song, or record of their transfer to wax, have found a place in our musical catalogue . . .

[illegible] of records being to print a medley of Hubert Valentine [illegible] new [illegible] being based as a probable successor to Jeri McCormack . . . He [illegible] and in New York yesterday . . .

Hubert will find himself [illegible] exactly a stranger when he arrives in Boston, Monday, to [illegible] his first American concert at Symphony Hall, Thanksgiving [illegible] . . . Two of his records are selling [illegible] . . . One is the disc with the Rose of Killarney on one side, and My Mary of the Curling Hair on the other . . . Another holds a rendition of "The Hard of Armagh" and "The Irish Immigrant" . . . Valentine is versatile, they say as Morton Downey . . .

Catholic Book Week To Revive Literature

By ANTHONY MERRILL
Book Editor

Catholic literature, which has long needed an American revival will be offered to the public next Sunday via Catholic Book Week.

A national movement, the drive here is in the hands of Cardinal O'Connell and a zealous group who plan to show that modern literary Catholicism is no longer "logical heaviness," but a virile stream-lined medium mirroring the principles of Christianity's most integral and uncompromising sect.

There will be lectures of explanation and inspiration. On Sunday, November 13, at the Boston Public Library, a symposium on Catholic literature will be held at 2:30 p. m. in the lecture hall.

Speakers will include the Rev. Robert H. Lord, Ph. D., of St. John's Seminary; Miss Martha B. Doherty of the St. Thomas More Lending Library, and the Rev. Terence L. Connolly, S. J., of Boston College.

Similar programs have been arranged for branch libraries.

A local committee has been appointed to publish an annotated bibliography to acquaint Catholic and non-Catholic readers with books on Catholic social philosophy, religious principles and views on modern problems.

About 400 titles have been included in adult non-fiction, 300 in adult fiction and 400 titles in the children's section. The list is published complete in the current issue of The Pilot, local Catholic weekly.

Vatican-Fascist Parley Splits on Marriage Law

Copyright, 1938, by International News Service.

ROME, Nov. 11 (INS)—Negotiations between Italy and the Vatican to avert an open break over the Fascist regime's new marriage laws have broken down, it was learned today.

Authoritative Vatican sources made this disclosure after the Italian cabinet approved a group of sweeping anti-Jewish decrees, one of which bans marriages between Italian "Aryans" and Jews.

Other edicts barred Jews from holding government positions and from military service, prohibited them from operating business enterprises employing more than 100 persons or considered essential to national defense, and provided for deprivation of parental rights of Jewish fathers whose children profess a non-Jewish faith.

Formal protest, alleging violation of the Italo-Vatican Lateran treaty was expected to be delivered to the Italian foreign office by the Holy See's state department.

New Junior Leaguers Attend First Meeting

By BETTY ALDEN

THE GOAL of every deb is to "make" the Junior League during her first year out . . . and despite the rigid standards set down by the League's board of admissions, about 60 or 70 new members have just been elected and attended their first meeting yesterday afternoon . . .

The first important business before the youthful members was to elect a chairman and vice-chairman . . . and when all the votes were counted it was found that Nancy Meyer, daughter of Mrs. Saltonstall Meyer and Mr. George Von L. Meyer, and Olivia Thorndike, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Augustus Thorndike, had conducted the best campaign . . . Following the meeting tea was served and the girls were introduced to older members of the League . . . and in order to make it easier to connect names with faces the debs wore little name cards on their lapels . . .

Esmee De Menocal and Margot Clark arrived in the nick of time to cast their ballots . . . Margot, one of the most retiring and publicity-shy debs of the season, wearing a strawberry red tweed outfit to enhance her blonde curls . . . Gail Neilson arrived a bit breathless from a last-minute fitting of the gown in which she made her debut at a dinner dance last evening . . . Other new members include Sally Brewer, whose lovely singing voice will be born to the casting officers of League plays . . . Edith Moir, Betty Herman, Lydia Cobb, Helena Edgell, Anstiss Dana, Roberta Robb, Clara Jackson, Betty Strong, Mary Macomber, Anne Godfrey, Lalla Warrington, Nancy McNeil, Janet Beppie, Ethel Febiger, Nancy Burrage and all the attractive North Shore crowd of debs . . . New post-deb members include Patty Spencer, Jean Carpenter and Debbie Bankart . . .

Barbara Bullitt to Be Honored

THE EIGHTY GUESTS invited to Mrs. Francis B. Crowninshield's dinner party at the Chilton Club this evening in honor of Barbara Bullitt, are wondering what amusing entertainment is in store for them . . . for this ingenious hostess has a way of providing some novelty to help break the ice before dinner and set a jolly note to the affair . . . At the dance she gave for Pauline duPont, of the Delaware duPonts, a trained seal performed amusing tricks while cocktails were being served . . .

Barbara is the pretty dark-eyed deb from the Blue Grass state . . . a niece of Mrs. Arthur Grannis, and through her father, William M. Bullitt, a relative of the American ambassador to France . . . Following tonight's dinner, she and her company of friends will adjourn to the Ritz where her parents are giving a ball in her honor . . . A billowy pink lace, threaded with silver, fashions her enchanting presentation gown . . .

Wed Now, Her Advice

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I've been going with a certain girl for about a year and a half, and we hope to get married some day. She's 23 and I'm 25. I was out of work for a long time and used part of my savings for living expenses, hence I haven't enough money to marry on. I have a new job now but I expect I have to wait a year before getting married.

[illegible] suggested we break it off. She had a good chance to get married and with the war scare she thinks we ought to be able to make a go of it. What do you think?

If your fiancee were less [illegible] when she marries I think I would be glad [illegible] to you. You're a fine [illegible] Have you her address? [illegible]

Katie Threatens To Leave Home

CHAPTER 17

Katie, Dr. Chris Arden thought idly, was a miracle in her way – anything to young and lovely out of that background of hers was surely a miracle. Beside him Lily was twittering with excitement.

"It's the best dress there," she whispered. "Miss Barker made it out of the money Jack left me."

And it was that night, with Katie brave in her new finery and Lily in the kitchen preparing a supper by way of celebration that the girl walked into his office and confronted him with his engagement.

Chris looked up to find her staring at him with reddened eyes and a small white face.

"Engaged?" Who told you that? And why don't you knock before you come in?"

"I heard it. That's all. Is it true?"

"It is true, of course. That needn't make any difference as yet to your mother or to you, Katie. And you looked very sweet, too, I think."

Katie however was past compliments. "Are you in love with her?"

"I'm very fond of her, Katie."

"And you're really going to marry her?"

He kept his temper, although his color rose. "It hasn't come to that. Maybe a long time from now when I can afford it and you are grown up and married yourself."

"Grown up!" Lately Chris Arden, I'm 18 now and I'm more grown up than she'll ever be. She's been interfered in her life and I've had to look out for myself. Oh, I know I'm dirt to you but she's wrong."

That's enough, Katie. Stop."

"What are you going to do. Live off her? Or turn us out and bring her here?"

"If I had dreamed it with you, Katie it would not have happened at all."

A doorbell rang. "And Katie" trotting to answer the telephone and trying to catch your name just for a baby case! How long would she do it."

A GIRL IN LOVE

"I don't need any help in managing my own affairs, my child. Be told her stiffly. Let's forget it. As I said before, you looked very pretty tonight."

And much you care," she said, and banged out of the room.

It was the next day that she asked him for a letter to Miss Simpson at the hospital. He was startled into speechlessness.

"Why shouldn't I be a nurse?" she said sharply. If you think I'm going to stay on here now and live off you, you can think again. Anyhow if you're going to be married."

Listen, Katie. If you think a nurse's job is to smooth pillows and stroke foreheads."

"I know all about it. Don't be funny, Chris. I'm no brew stricken, but I'll do the job all right. You won't be ashamed of me. But if Beverly Lewis is coming here to live I'm out, and that's flat."

It was a long time that night before Chris slept. One thing was certain. He must get Katie out of the house and out of his life as soon as possible. He had no illusions about her. But she was young and attractive and she was undoubtedly dangerous.

He went to Miss Simpson the next day and laid his problem squarely before her. She listened carefully, watching him.

"What sort of girl is she?"

She's straight, if that's what you mean."

"And she's fond of you?"

"She thinks she is. She'll get over it."

I don't like it, Chris. How do I know she'll behave here? I'm serious about my girls. They're straight, and they're ladies."

"She has good stuff in her. She's never had a chance."

"And you're still supporting them."

Such as it is! I'm a sort of licensed victualer these days. But I'm anxious about the girl. She has no chance where she is. As a matter of fact she almost got into trouble last fall. Maybe I ought to tell you, but I want to start right."

He did tell her, saving nothing and she looked more than doubtful. But she was fond of Chris, and the picture of the famous he had drawn had been she imagined, a masterpiece of understatement. In the end she consented. She would see Katie and let him know.

"I'M GOING, CHRIS"

That was toward the end of June and on a blistering day early in July Katie carried a small bag into Chris' office and closed the door behind her.

"I'm going, Chris."

"Well good luck to you, Katie."

"I'll not bother you any more. You know that."

"You never did, my dear. I've been no angel of light myself, have I?"

She stood close to him, her face a mask of tragic indifference.

"I suppose you wouldn't kiss me for good luck?"

"Kiss you? Why not?"

He bent over and kissed her gently as a brother might or a father. Then she turned and went out.

Like everything else in that transition period before the World War medicine was moving rapidly. The isolation period in surgery had ended with the College of Surgeons. There were still vast systems of medicine on the market but faith in empiric prescribing was rapidly dying, scientific medicine was taking its place and specialization was coming like an army with its banners.

Chris, reading his medical journals that summer when he had the time, tried to adjust himself to the new trend and told Ted Lawrence down the street that he felt outdated already.

"Another few years of this," he said, "and we'll be as extinct as the dodo."

"Not you," said Lawrence jocosely. "You can always take a knife and do a little carving. It's the general fellows like me who'll be ringing a bell and carving a bit out."

It was a mighty movement just getting under way. Laboratories were already at work. Institutes were being endowed for research into this and that and preventive medicine, public health and public welfare were coming to the front.

Chris was desperately in love by that time. What had started more or less as a romantic dream had become a reality which was bone of his bone and flesh of his flesh.

Beverly's picture sat on his old bureau, and his good night to it during those days was more of a prayer than he knew.

HIS COURTSHIP

He went prosaically enough about his work, however, stormed as usual at the condition of his poor in the blistering heat, fought Jenkins for ice for milk, for whatever he could get extract a little, even slept a little. But he knew then and was always to know that his feeling for Beverly was the strongest actuating motive of his life.

"I'm frightened, Chris. Come over here and hold me. Don't let me go. Never let me go."

"That was his courtship, a somber affair at best with her leading to him like a scared child and a hush over the house as if it waited for something. As indeed it did.

Annie had better days when she would get Beverly to and even plan her trousseau for her.

One day in July Beverly asked Chris to let her sitting room and he saw her on a couch an old-fashioned wedding dress of ivory satin and a veil.

She had been brought out today Chris. She wants me to wear them, later on."

They stood together, gazing at the dress, its long train lined with lace ruffles, its high neck its narrow waist. The veil had a satin band over the head and a bunch of copies at the side. Beverly was crying.

She must have been so happy when she wore them, Chris."

Don't think about it, darling. Don't think. Just love me and let me love you."

Beverly matured at that time confronting raw life and suffering as she was for the first time. One day she told Chris that she wanted to make him a home and bear his children.

She wanted sons, fine big sons like Jamie." He was touched beyond speech. But later he talked to her about their marriage.

"I'm a poor man, Beverly. You won't like that."

I do, to be poor, Chris."

"AS YOU ARE."

Listen, darling. I can't let your father support me or your mother. If you take me you must take me as I am."

"Then I take you as you are," she said softly.

He knew that she had no idea of what he meant by the term of impoverishment, of struggle, of [illegible]

'THE FLYING GINZBURGS' SERVE LAUGHS AT PLYMOUTH

Hume Cronyn, Nugent Head Capable Funsters

By PEGGY DOYLE

Producer Vinton Freedley, whose musical, "Leave It To Me," seems definitely assured of a successful New York run, made a most propitious debut into the farce comedy field last night at the Plymouth, with "The Flying Ginzburgs."

Written by Allen Boretz who collaborated on the fabulous comedy hit, "Room Service," and Max Liebman, "The Flying Ginzburgs" has an impromptu entertainment chairman of a lodge innocently masquerading as a rug tycoon who is going to return the two-a-day back to the proper.

Hume Cronyn, timid rhymster handicapper of "Three Men On a Horse" in the lodge chairman, whose uncorked enthusiasm for vaudeville threatens to add still another name to the unemployment roles.

Hollywood's Eddie Nugent, as the glib song-and-dance man too long between engagements, has a part custom-tailored to his measurements.

Between them, they manage to assemble within the modest confines of the Quill home as complete and eye-popping a cast of vaudeville artists as ever packed the Palace.

• • •

Before the second curtain, the two-a-day is back in Boston and the customers crimped and pomaded alike, are having a good old-fashioned time of their lives. Under the hearty and demented influence of the song and dance man for cosparmiquiceast entertainment chairman has long since persuaded to turn his Elks' lodge temple into a hotel for vaudeville.

The mistress of the house returns to find tumblers in tap shoes, acrobats in rug, dancing girls in tutus, ingenues and prima donnas practicing "bumps" in the prima donna of mature proportions rehearsing Melancholy Baby.

Exitatic over the world-shaking entertainment he has planned for the lodge's big night, the while ever chairman has "thrown" $600 from his company's funds to pay the head man, the hoofer. He is unaware that the lodge chancellor has been burning because his wife's celebrations has not been included in the program.

• • •

When the stuffed-shirt chancellor calls the whole thing off the hoofer, who's not a bad guy, takes the other performers. The show must go on.

One of the funniest scenes is when each is handed a flock of pages from the lodge year-book by Nugent, given a description of the voice and approach of the lodge-members pictured therein and then ordered to get the chancellor on the telephone and insist that the "show must go on." One makes the faux-pas of impersonating a voice from the dead at quick-thinking on the part of Otto Hulett's wisecracking magician, Gabby O'Keefe, saves the show.

After that, with the chancellor gone to the last regular stop by Pat Bryan keeping the spirit the action, ags. The lodge soon gets too heavy-handed and the third act becomes anti-climax.

Starting up the first act and covering the third act so as to maintain the light touch established by Cronyn in the second act, I give "The Flying Ginzburgs" a resolved start for the Boretzian run.

Bartholomew-Garland Film Tops Loew's Bill

Freddie Bartholomew, who is appearing this week at the Loew's State stage in Providence shares starring honors with another New England favorite, young Judy Garland, in "Listen, Darling," on Loew's State and Orpheum screens.

The emerald-eyed elder Mickey Rooney wants as cocky as Freddie is boyishly reserved in co-star of the comprean feature. Statisticians Wallace Beery veteran tear-eater is teamed with Mickey.

"Listen, Darling," based on Katharine Brush's magazine story of the same name, capitalizes on the English lad's coltishness. It is a long time as cinema years go, since Freddie discarded his little Lord Fauntleroy suit and in the interim, although he has retained his clipped way of speaking, he has almost completely lost his distinguishing English accent. There is even talk at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios about having him relearn his British sound effects.

In his latest picture young Bartholomew has a more sympathetic role than he usually plays. He and Judy Garland are greatly concerned about the romance between the latter's pretty mother, Mary Ann, and the stuffy Dan Tanker, Gene Lockhart.

To prevent a marriage between the two the youngsters kidnap the girl's mother in the family trailer and set out to find her a suitable husband.

Auto Industry Sees New Boom

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
International News Service Economic Commentator

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 (INS)—As the 39th annual automobile show opened here today, it was a significant omen of better times that consumer enthusiasm for the new cars is causing leading manufacturers to step up their announced production schedules.

This is an unusual experience for an industry normally characterized by exuberant optimism. Back in September, dealers in the motor industry were making highly cautious forecasts of improving demand.

However, despite experience with the losses sold such dealers in the previous new model's demonstrated that consumer prosperity, the necessity of a sharp improvement in conditions in the last twelve months had acted on the side of moderation.

The experience of the industry bears out the view of public relations around the country who assert that the upward movement, and that enough increasing prosperity and consumer support the automobile industry will stimulate for a certain prosperity.

PENT UP DEMAND

R. H. Grant, vice president of General Motors Corporation in charge of sales, remarked to me:

"We already have enough orders on hand to work until the first of the year. Orders to be booked between now and January 1 doubtless will provide opportunity for employment in the winter months.

"We are now getting the benefit of a pent up demand which accumulated during the last 12 months, when individuals wanted and needed new cars but were too scared to spend."

Simon [illegible] Ford Motor Company, [illegible] E. Davis, general sales manager, said the first two days [illegible] 17,000 persons entered [illegible] Ford factory exhibit, about [illegible] Thursday and Friday and Saturday.

He stated that dealers in those two days booked orders for 3,000 more than the largest initial business ever done.

Thomas [illegible] vice president of Packard Motor Car Company, [illegible] company has 40 Packards on display as of Wednesday, and 141 open orders for passenger cars on its books compared with 137,000 announced on October 15.

"Present indications are that automobile output during the new model year, including the United States and Canada, will range from 2,750,000 to 3,500,000 vehicles,' Mr. Keller said.

A. E. Barit, president and general manager of the Hudson Motor Car Company, forecast that actual new car deliveries are proceeding at [illegible] the pace of a year ago.

RAISED UPWARD

Alfred Reeves, general manager of the Automobile Manufacturers Association, said:

"All reports reaching me indicate that automobile production schedules will be promptly revised upward. Instead of the predicted increase in sales of 25 per cent to 30 per cent, over the past year, there is now every hope that the increase will be substantially greater."

Industry Boom, Relief Cut Seen Election Sequel

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 (AP)—Stimulation of private industry, particularly heavy goods coupled with major reductions in relief spending is expected by some leading figures in the financial and industrial community as a sequel to the election.

Private and extended conversations during the past six weeks between President Roosevelt and some business leaders have led these Wall Street sources to forecast a new phase of national economic policy.

Fully recognizing that chairmanships of the new economic plan may be altered before its delivery to the nation, they said they discerned its principal features to be:

1—A long range heavy industry recovery program under the guise of national defense, which Wall Streeters have urged as likely to be more enduring than the short-lived recovery cycles.

2—A drive to get 80 per cent or more of those on WPA payrolls back in gainful industrial employment within 15 months.

3—Drastic reduction of PWA and all forms of federal grants, except for national defense, accompanied by a switch in the federal fiscal program in the direction of a pay-as-you-go policy, requiring a broadening of the tax base.

4—Expansion of the nation's international trade in connection with a projected international peace program.

5—Definite limitation to further expansion of federal social and economic reforms.

Some of these leaders said they had explicit assurances from the President that there would be acts to some social and economic reforms begun during the first half of the President's second term.

These leaders, including some of the President's sharpest critics, have privately, and in some cases publicly, expressed hearty approval of what they term a "Fourth New Deal" in its embryonic state.

COMMODITY INDEX DROPS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—The Labor Department has reported that its wholesale commodity price index dropped 0.4 per cent last week. This brought the index down to 77.3. Weaker farm products and food prices accounted for most of the decline.

Haney Warns Conservatives On Vote Effect

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, Nov. 11—One point which should be made concerning election results, is that they do not indicate a counter revolution.

While the returns show a defeat for the New Deal radical extremists, they do not show any tendency to swing to the conservative extreme.

It is possible that, after the first exuberance, the stock market may react rather sharply on realization that business is not entirely out of danger.

But for most of us it will be found in the long run that most of the New Deal "objectives" have been good. Even some of their means have not been all bad.

Generally even when doing the right things, they have done them the wrong way.

SOME GOOD FEATURES

Most of us agree that there is much good in the regulation of security issues and stock exchanges as known in this case there are some restrictions which have been made and surely desirable business.

Most of us [illegible] that somewhat effective should be done in the way of preventing the overexpansion and collapse. It is to be hoped that the [illegible] of the New Deal [illegible] will be corrected but at least they have broken the ice.

Again, most of us have long known that effective collective bargaining between employer and employee is an essential part of economic democracy.

It is barely possible that the "Wagner Act" and the NLRB may in the end prove to have contributed to the final establishment of sound labor relations.

MAY NEED REPEAL

We begin to see clearly the excesses and unsound features of the New Deal, and may have to repeal the Wagner Act in order to pass a good labor relations law.

The "Social Security" Act, with its growing tax burden and its enormous fake "reserve" is so bad that it will have to be amended.

The long and short of it is that most men have good "objectives". We all want everybody to be happy. But the question is: How can we obtain our objectives? It is this question that the New Deal has completely failed to answer.

Market Boost Plan Studied

A market expansion program for New England that will function the year around was being considered today by the New England Council.

It was presented at a conference of the council at the Hotel Statler by representatives of farming, fishing and manufacturing interests.

They recommend formation of a committee, representing producer, distributor and consumer, to carry out the plan.

Douglas MacKechie, of the chain store committee which recently inaugurated "New England Days," presented the suggestion to the council.

He said the chain stores which participated in the "days" had found that emphasizing New England products led to greatly increased demand for those products.

He and others spoke in favor of co-ordination of marketing facilities, deliberate promotion of New England products on a quality basis, and modernization of distribution machinery.

Among the speakers were W. Arthur Perrins, Jr., of Old Homestead Orchards at Westford, Homer Huntington of the New England Fresh Egg Institute and E. H. Cooley, manager of the Massachusetts Association, Inc.

Textiles Show Best Progress

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW
Financial Editor

While practically all lines of industry in the New England area made additional headway in the past, textile trades made the best progress.

During September operations of many cotton mills were restricted by the storms and floods but they have been gradually increasing operations until now they are fully active.

Recently the industry has also been aided by a fairly brisk turnover in the New York and other goods markets. Yesterday, for instance, some 15,000,000 yards were reported to have changed hands. Finished goods prices have been [illegible] and strength in cotton staple seems certain to encourage price increases as it always does buying.

In the wool textile lines it is hoped that unseasonable weather while retarding heavy goods sales has not been much of a manufacturing or price depressant.

Dun & Bradstreet reporting this morning predicts say that the textile [illegible] the cutting trades [illegible] been quite active.

A pessimist was [illegible] the market [illegible] and [illegible] the stock [illegible] first week in the Boston market has been good and a spell of cold weather should not only help retailers but encourage [illegible] to trade here.

* * *

Stock prices are discovering the path to higher levels is not a smooth, clear one and as a consequence a good bit of bearish sentiment has developed. It may be that what is happening in the way of selling will halt the uptrend but we are inclined to doubt it.

In the first place the disposal of trading holdings is likely to place the market in a stronger technical position. Particularly if replacement with a short position fails to bring about a downturn.

Another factor to consider as an at least negatively bullish force is the reported absence of the public from the market. These things together with the removal of liquidation threat by those fearful of political policies are more than likely to furnish a cushion for a setback and the base for a fresh rise.

* * *

Notebook . . . Technically the market bounced higher from a "line" formation . . . Usually a gesture toward retracing to the point of congestion is to be expected . . .

Shoes Oil due to continued [illegible] unemployment problem will not earn over $2 per share on 3.8 . . . Earnings [illegible] said to be working at better than 70 per cent of capacity . . . And at least $1.50 per share is looked for this year.

Vanderbilt Win Seen Sign Class 'War' Is Ending

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
International News Service Economic Commentator

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 (INS)—A significant symbol, measuring the growing distaste of the American public for class warfare, was formulated by the election of a member of the Vanderbilt family as governor of Rhode Island.

The [illegible] of Gov. Robert [illegible] Vanderbilt [illegible] Harvard William H. Vanderbilt [illegible] commonwealth was perhaps the most decisive demonstration of the American preference for a [illegible] society since the late Woodrow [illegible] He [illegible] the most [illegible] Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury.

[illegible] board has served [illegible] on the country that it is not a crime to be wealthy.

Thus does the movement sponsored by the late Huey Long and others give evidence of ebbing.

A man reported to have inherited $20,000,000 was not deemed ineligible to sit in the governor's chair in Rhode Island.

It is desirable that voters should be willing to accept personalities on their merits without bind prejudice against material evidence of family "success."

The recent evidence of a restoration of the two party system in this country has important implications for those holding the obligations and evidences of ownership of American enterprise.

The new robustness of the two-party system is evidence of a public dislike for tendencies in the direction of totalitarianism.

The election constituted good news for capital, management and labor. European experience demonstrates that approaches to dictatorship ultimately weaken not only the rights of capital but also of labor.

The defeat of the California [illegible] and egg amendment to give $30 a week to all unemployed over 50 years of age was also a revealing sign of the times.

Steel Head Predicts New Advances in Industry

By G. B. LAL
International News Service Science Editor

(Copyright, 1938)

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 (INS)—A new age of steel, which will bring important advances in the key technics of American civilization, was predicted today by Dr. Rufus E. Zimmerman, vice president and director of research of the United States Steel Corporation.

In the light of new developments in physics and chemistry the science of metals has been undergoing dramatic changes.

Using X-rays, radium's gamma rays, electron beams, the crystal structures of the atoms in any metal are observed, and by their rearrangements utterly new metal alloys can be produced. Dr. Zimmerman said:

"Today we can make steel only as small in thickness as one-400th of an inch. It is strong enough to be used in the making of airplanes. In old times a heavy metal like iron was regarded massive, strong, but certainly not a light substance.

"For our high speed in the air, strength and lightness of weight must be combined—almost opposite qualities have to be reconciled.

"The steel maker must be able to produce a metal to answer each specific purpose. For certain uses we now make a steel pipe of 10,000 feet length, capable of bearing enormous pressures from above. In another industry, seamless steel tubes of 20 inches in diameter, and one-third of an inch wall thickness, are used.

"If we were to produce any desired alloy by the hit or miss method of trial combinations, several thousand attempts would be necessary—discouraging, costly undertaking.

"Through scientific theory, six to eight experiments are all that have to be made."

Whims of Weather Make Retail Trade Irregular

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 (AP)—The vagaries of the weather accounted for a spotty and irregular trend in the past week's retail trade, said Dun & Bradstreet today in their weekly business survey.

"There was little uniformity in trade activity reports from different sections of the country," the survey commented, "although the majority of stores showed some gain over last week and last year because of the inclusion of election day totals.

"Cold accelerated the distribution of seasonal merchandise in some areas. Rain and record high November temperatures discouraged buying of cold weather needs in others.

"Sales volume on the election holiday varied from 5 per cent above to 20 per cent below last year's election day, but in many stores was more than double.

"Nearly all branches of the wholesale market were busier than in the previous week. The chief gains were in Christmas merchandise."

Austen Lake:

A Word for Hockey's Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde

TODAY'S LITTLE TEXT IS A PSYCHO-ANALYSIS of Eddie Shore, the contradictory character who wants more sweetening in his Bruins' hockey contract. I think you will concur that no sport figure of our time is so rich in storied-legend, so violent in rink action, and so genteel in his domestic privacy.

AUSTEN LAKE

When encountered socially Shore is a mild man, disarmingly docile and quick to grin. His name has never been listed on a Boston police blotter for hot-spot hooliganisms. He has never biffed any of the cantankerous fans who sometimes court destruction in rival hockey cities. His record is clear of the kind of pictorial inebriacies which brighten the saga of baseball and other professional sport. Shore has been an orderly person who goes home at night and reads the magazines.

So that is his Dr. Jekyl side!

But up in Shore, on a rectangle of ice with pads on his person, a shaved cudgel in his hands and chromium scooters on his feet, and he becomes a predatory gent who, at the smallest provocation, will kick out jawbone teeth, bust them over the skull or wreck them in bone-crushing collisions.

And that is his Mr. Hyde side!

* * *

3-Part Rise to Wrath

WHY, DO YOU SUPPOSE, IS THIS? The answer, I think, traces partly to his unique, nervous hookup, partly to his tendency to reason by emotion, and partly to the traditional type of game that hockey is. For Eddie, more than any other athlete in organized sport, regards his profession somewhat as a Bulgarian mountain chief takes his neighborhood politics—with a deep and sacred belief in tooth-for-tooth retaliation.

At hockey is sport's highest blood pressure game, one where big men skate 30 miles per hour in intermeshed, arabesque weavings, jerks in a split second. High hysteria thrives on the sidelines and a form of mass-mad frenzy on the ice. The bare mechanics of the game breed brawn and quick ar muscles and my only wonder is, at the restraint of the athletes as they untangle their parts, adjust their pads and resume the fray.

And there is a proud, shared "honor" among the hockey athletes, as Dr. Art Ross, the Bruins' maestro says. He finds that a player's rage is analyzed in three distinct stages. (1), at the instant a rival bores him with a stick butt and the thought occurs, "maybe he didn't mean it." (2) When the same player does it again and the reaction is "maybe he did mean it" and (3) the third time when wrath ignites. Bust him!

* * *

As Shore Explains It

NOW REASON DICTATES THE POSSIBILITY that a player, thus offended, might skip the first two conclusions and jump to the third without rationalizing. "Bust him" might be the instant message from brain to muscle.

But Shore says for his part, he has never initiated, though, on occasion has retaliated. In fact Shore vows that he is far in arrears with his retaliation for injuries grossed and irritations accumulated over the years. As evidence he offers the sum of his own surgical and hes fractures, contusions and gouges, as against those he has administered to rival players.

Shore reasons thus: I, he says, am a commercial athlete making a living largely by health, ability and well being. I have rent to pay, household expenses to meet, dependents to feed. And if any opposing so-and-so tries to take my livelihood away with skate, stick, elbow, knee or fist, I'm bound to teach him the theory of equal privilege and self-preservation.

* * *

"The Time Is Now"—Shore

THE TROUBLE WITH THIS KIND of justice is that Eddie, or one of his offended fellows, constitutes himself a drumhead court with an emotional, spot verdict against the accused. The latter's intention may be innocent and the offense accidental. But the penalty is none the-less instant and severe. To which Shore replies that unfortunately there is no time to retire to weigh evidence and debate intent. The time is NOW—Biff! Bang! Bing! Which seems to nullify Ross's theory of graduated conclusion.

Not having seen, but the sport sections in general produces many grand hockey pictures, with make it impossible to determine the split second at which separates honest effort from heinous intent. The puck carrier gets a mouth in the eye and nary an eye has been permanently scalped, nose of teeth so dented by accident. The [illegible] pummeled mightily either for the sake of the team, whether to remove a rival's incisors, or for the ultimate in fame and glory. And in baseball the players often step out, change or clean shoes, primarily to sharpen their tempers. But when in the swift confusion of sliding to a bag upon which [illegible] by mortal umpire can say whether the runner [illegible] in the breast or [illegible] more sinister than sport and [illegible]

[illegible] kind of game and the general disorder is brought about in the sport they play rather than the men who play it. Which I think goes a long way toward explaining why Shore, who has been a [illegible] with his energies and played a little harder than [illegible] is the Jekyl and Hyde person that he is. And when on the premises, he is asking a little more sugar in his daisy tea [illegible] and afraid he is still Boston's favorite winter athlete.

Seeking Harvard's first freshman win over Yale since 1933, the Crimson freshman football squad left Boston for New Haven today. Coach Neil Stahley took thirty-three players on the trip. They were to have a late afternoon practice today in the Yale Bowl, where the game will be played tomorrow at 2 p. m.

Harvard's last victory over the Eli youngsters was in 1935, when the Crimson won, 31-6. Yale won 13-0, in 1934, 21-19 in 1935, 26-14 in 1936, and 27-0 in 1937.

This Harvard freshman team has lost but one game, that to Exeter 3-0 in its first start, when the Crimson squad had been organized for only a week. In their second game, the freshmen won from Worcester 14-12, and since then defeated Andover 20-0 and Dartmouth freshmen 12-0.

Yale defeated Andover 19-6, Exeter 26-20, lost to Cheshire School 6-0 and to the Princeton freshmen 25-0.

$4,220,000 Asked To Finance Olympics

HELSINGFORS, Nov. 11 (AP)—The cabinet is asking Parliament to appropriate 200,000,000 Finnish marks ($4,200,000) for financing the 1940 Olympic games here.

Some Punting!

CLEMSON, S. C., Nov. 11 (AP)—Somebody took time out from his calculus class at Clemson College to figure out Bob Bailey, the Tigers' triple threat halfback star, punted a football more than three quarters of a mile in competition this season. The cold numerals are 41 boots for 4518 feet.

Green Works Out At Glen Spring

GLEN SPRING, N. Y., Nov. 11 (INS)—An undefeated Dartmouth football squad of 35 players arrived here today for its important Ivy League game with Cornell tomorrow at Ithaca.

The squad worked out shortly after its arrival here, and then pitched camp for the night.

Fear Nots

These Virginia boys are supposed to be in for a slaughter when they face Harvard tomorrow, but they don't seem to be worried at all as they chide slowpoke member of team who is finishing dressing on the Back Bay station platform. They look big enough to take care of themselves, don't they?

Virginia Team Arrives Here For Harvard Tilt

Frank J. Murray arrived in town bright and early this morning, bringing his Virginia football team to Boston to battle Harvard at the Stadium tomorrow.

The Cavaliers' coach is the same Murray who often times bossed Marquette University.

Murray came directly from these parts and was graduate of Tufts.

The Virginia team which he will send against the Crimson, fans quite a bit short of his outstanding Marquette teams.

Virginia is not expected to exert too much pressure on the Crimson on this occasion, the eighth time that the rival teams have met since Harvard won the opening game of the series, 9 to 0 back in 1915.

GLEE FOR CRIMSON

In those seven former meetings, the Harvards have managed to roll up mighty impressive scores, the while the Cavaliers have yet to win a game or as much as score a point.

However, Dick Harlow chief of the Cambridge eleven clan has too much respect for Murray's ability to take Tom's team's gallantry entirely for granted.

With the Yale game in the offing, Harlow is not expected to use more than one of its recently acquired pep and appeal and will try to win the game as impressively as possible.

HAVE WON FOUR

Two of Harvard's present team started the 1936 game between tomorrow's rivals won by the Crimson 65 to 0. They are Captain Bobby Green, the end, and Hacker Wilson great blocking back.

Three of the Southern's last [illegible] against Harvard that same day, Captain Jean Acee who played fullback then but goes at guard on this occasion, Woods George and Jim Sargent, ends.

Although the Cavaliers have won four of their seven games to date and tied one, they lost their two major engagements, to Navy 33 to 0, and Columbia 27 to 0.

Hall All-America, Says Coach Mehre

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fred Apostoli has been looking sloppy against southpaw sparmates in training . . . Which may mean something when he tangles with Lefty Young Corbett for the middleweight "title" (New York version) next week . . .

Texas Wesleyan, the Lone Star State's biggest little football outfit, is open to offers for a Thanksgiving Day game anywhere in the U. S. . . . Maybe 18-year-old Forrest Brewer, up with the Senators from the Florida State League to be answer to all Bucky Harris' prayers for a southpaw winner . . . All the kid was win 20, fin 234 pitch a no-hitter and ran in an earned run average of 1.88 for St. Augustine last year . . . Ozzie Miseo the Chicago Bears' guard has the "fat man" championship of the National Football League sewed up . . . He tipped up the scales during the season at a mere 270 and regain the laurels from Bulldog Turner . . .

Elmer Layden

Henry Vorske of Grand Rapids, Mich., who thinks Michigan can take any Southwest team, can get all kinds of bets down that-a-way . . . Bill Parker writes that West Texas folks would scratch up about $5,000,000 on Texas Tech against the Wolverines—and Tech isn't even a conference member . . . and Jerry Dollins, down at Little Rock, Ark., says Texas and Arkansas boys and girls would hock their longhorns and oil wells to play Texas Christian on the nose if someone'll arrange the game . . .

Speaking of wagers, Ohio U rooters will go for plenty that their pal, Johnny Montgomery, can outpass Sid Luckman any day in the week . . . Tommy Dixon, Somis (Cal) lightweight, is headed East to start a European tour. Booked in England, France and Ireland, then will fight back through South America . . .

The pick-em-and-pray class now comes to order . . . This corner goes for Notre Dame over Minnesota. But the pride of Mankato (Minn.), Henry Jabbra, who was a ball of fire against Iowa, may give Elmer Layden's lads a busy afternoon . . . This may be the week Duke comes off the unbeaten, uncored on list, but we like the Blue Devils, regardless . . . Alas Texas Christian, Oklahoma and Tennessee to stay undefeated . . . The Yales to come back against the Princetons . . . Dartmouth's powerhouse over Cornell . . . Southern Cal over Washington.

Harry Mehre, who's doing a whale of a job his first year at Mississippi, figures his triple-threater, Bullet Hall, could make any backfield in the country, at either full or half. The kid must have it, at that, because he's working behind the greenest line at Ole Miss in years, and still has averaged six yards per crack and passed for 572 in seven games . . . Ralph Guldahl, up and around again and showing up and around again and showing off his opp'ration, will come back to the golf wars this month . . .

Wuxtra! Minnesota Underdog

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 11 (AP)—Minnesota's Golden Gophers, heading today for South Bend to meet the Irish of Notre Dame tomorrow, experienced a novel sensation—they were the underdog in the betting for the first time in five years.

Not since back in 1933 when Minnesota met Pittsburgh here (and beat the Panthers, 7 to 3) has Bernie Bierman's Juggernauts been rated low in the handicappers' column.

Some of the local bookies were quoting as high as 2 to 1 on Notre Dame—in strange contrast to the past few years when they were giving even money, that Minnesota would win by up to 20 points from many teams.

The Gophers have lost just four games since 1932.

Tigers End Work For Yale Tilt

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 11 (AP)—Princeton brushed up on forward passing in a two-hour drill which marked completion of preparations for the Yale game.

College Dinghies Race at Brown

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 11 (INS)—Crews from seven colleges and universities compete tomorrow for a permanent trophy in the annual Brown University Yacht Club regatta, major sailing event on Brown's home waters this season.

According to Commodore Ralph L. Bishop, Fletcher Jr. presidents have been accepted by Dartmouth, Harvard, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Princeton, Tufts and Williams for the race on the Seekonk River. Each club to be represented by two boys.

Bowdoin Polishes For Tufts Game

BRUNSWICK, Me., Nov. 11 (INS)—Hopeful of victory, the Bowdoin eleven planned a light workout today in anticipation of the game with Tufts College of Medford, Mass., tomorrow.

Coach Adam Walsh said he looked for a hard battle.

Win or Walk!

LONG BEACH, Cal., Nov. 11 (AP)—The Long Beach Junior College football squad will be playing for more than glory against Santa Monica Junior College at Santa Monica tonight.

The Long Beach squad, which has lost five straight games, will be divided into two teams. Each will play alternate quarters.

The team making the most yardage will ride home. The other will walk the 25 long miles.

P. S. Should Long Beach win, which the players hardly dare hope for, both squads will ride home.

Promoter Gambling on Budge Without William Tilden III

For the first time this season, Dartmouth will meet an opponent tomorrow that has a chance . . . The Big Red team is always at its best against the Big Green . . . And, now, with Dartmouth undefeated and untied, Cornell will bear down with everything it has tomorrow afternoon in Ithaca . . . Art Ross, manager of the Bruins, is down with another attack of neuritis and Cooney Weiland is "boss" of the practice sessions . . . Donald Budge didn't get $100,000 for joining the ranks of pro tennis players, but still he did all right by himself . . . Without Bill Tilden in the troupe, the promoters are taking a real gamble to guarantee Budge $75,000 . . . It looks like a promising hockey season for the medicine men . . . The season isn't a fortnight old, yet there are many players hospitalized . . . Harley Frost, who was sent to Hershey by the Bruins, is one of the best looking prospects the Rosemen have picked up since the Kid Line . . . Clarence Hamilton, who was one of the greatest roller skating racers ever seen in action, is now located at Biddeford, Me. . . . Hal Reese, who was acquired by the Red Sox when Tom Yawkey bought the Louisville club, and Bill Sayles, who was tried out last spring at Sarasota by Joe Cronin, were members of the 1936 U. S. Olympic baseball team . . . Pat Rago, from Fasta Boat', is training the Olympic Juniors . . . Capt. Jack Wright and Sid Luckman will be back in the Columbia lineup for the Navy game . . . Only on three occasions in 1937 did the attendance for N. H. L. games at the Toronto Maple Leaf Gardens fall below 10000 . . . The Leafs have played to less than that number against both the Bruins and the Black Hawks . . . Bobby Marr, who is a nephew of Win Green, trainer of the Red Sox and the Bruins, will be a candidate for the Bowdoin College varsity hockey team this season . . . Contrary to Clyde Engle, the Red Sox never made a home run, a triple, a two bagger and a single off Walter Johnson and only score one run . . . Engle referred to the p. m. game in Washington, May 30, 1913 . . . Hooper hit the first ball pitched for the circuit, Yerkes tripled, Speaker was hit by a pitched ball and then Duffy Lewis hit to McBride, who threw to Ainsmith and Yerkes was trapped and tagged out by Gedeon . . . Engle singled to right and Speaker was out at the plate . . . Then, Wagner fanned, ending the inning . . . Incidentally, that a. m. Hooper also hit the first ball pitched by Bob Groom for a home run.

GRIMES.

Canadiens Prove Flop Of Season

By the Associated Press

It's early for a knockout cause but the suspicion is getting around that Montreal's Flying Frenchmen may not be such a hazard in the National Hockey League as some expected.

Outpaced, outstickhandled by most of the rest of the disorganized Maroons the Canadiens have been trimmed in their last two starts, both times on the road.

No one gasped when Chicago Black Hawks turned the trick last week but it was a different matter last night when Toronto Maple Leafs who hadn't won in two chances came through with a 2 to 0 shutout.

The Canadiens started a whirlwind offensive which never did more than come close when the Leafs' goal tender, Bill Thoms, was pulled in front of the cage and he remained a bare three minutes after the second period started. Nick Metz added the clincher point in the final period.

New York Americans made it a pair of Detroit Red Wings' scalps when they won a hard-fought game from the Motor City sextet, 3 to 1.

Second Test Monday

Guy Vitagliano In All-Americas

It is the "All-America Selection Season," and New England amateur boxers are now showing their wares for consideration in the tryout tourneys being staged by the Boston Evening American and Irish American A. A. at the Boston Arena.

Next Monday night the second elimination tournament will be held with bouts in ten classes—eight divisions for open boxers in all championship weights from flyweights to heavyweights, and two brackets for the novices at 135 and 160 pounds.

The winners in each class of the four tryouts will qualify for the New England All-America finals, which are to be held at the Garden on December 5.

The New England title holders will then battle the All-America champions from New York, Syracuse, Albany and Baltimore in the Eastern All-America finals at the Garden on December 12, with the winners of that meeting carrying the colors of the East in the Grand National All-America finals at Detroit in January.

Listed among the 57 entries now on file are favorites like Guy Vitagliano, Medford, and Eddie DeAngelis, Revere in the 112—Ray Fournier, Manchester, N. H.; Joe Moore, Springfield and George O'Brien in the 118—Johnny Rizzo, E. Boston; Geo. Martin, Springfield; Leo Dulmaine, Millbury and Dick Shocks, Warner, N. H. in the 126—Sam DeVincenzo, Haverhill; Genaro DeMaio, Springfield; Al Proietti, Leominster and Jimmy Esposito, Brookline in the 135 pounds bracket.

All-America Entry Blank

The following classes will be contested in tryouts in the Hearst All-America boxing show at Arena, Nov. 14, Nov. 21, Nov. 28:

112, 118, 126, 135, 147, 160 and 175 pounds and heavyweight.

Robbie Saves Rangers' Scalp

DETROIT, Nov. 11 (INS)—The New York Rangers got credit today for a 2-1 win over Detroit's Red Wings in the National Professional Hockey League standings, but goalie Earl Robertson, whose chief rewards for the evening were a general pat on the back and a six-stitch cut over his eye, should put the game in his personal win column.

Robertson, a former wing, turned back everything Detroit had to offer and parried the final shot with his eye.

Kaplan Certain He'll Beat Martin

Mike Kaplan of Dorchester figures he'll box his way to victory over George Martin when they clash in the 10-round feature of the Goodwin A. C. ring show at the Boston Arena a week from tonight, Nov. 18.

Kaplan's handlers figure that he's giving away too big a chunk in the important matter of weight and strength to Martin, but Kaplan figures otherwise.

War Admiral 'Cap Favorite

By DAVE WILSON

Selections for Fast Track
BEST BET—SUNPORT, 6th

NARRAGANSETT PARK, R. I., Nov. 11—War Admiral, second to only Seabiscuit among handicap stars on this side of the Atlantic, shapes up vastly superior to eight mediocre rivals listed to oppose him in the $10,000 added Rhode Island handicap, mile and a furlong feature, here tomorrow.

Although heavily burdened with 127 pounds up, the Admiral figures to win easily, unless he has completely lost his racing edge—a fact which may be evidenced by his stunning defeat at the flying hooves of Seabiscuit in their historic match race at Pimlico.

For this reason, I'm skipping War Admiral and going to the following event—the Colchester pure—to name my best bet.

Sunport, a winner of three consecutive races, figures to romp to victory.

FIRST RACE

Ottoman, Maebob, Velvet Mask

OTTOMAN and MAEBOB are both on the also eligible list, and they figure as named with the top pair on the sidelines, the race would seem to order for VELVET MASK. The latter gets a tremendous figure on his recent win over Hastinola and other platers.

SECOND RACE

Distract, Muggins, Black Rhapsody

DISTRACT overcame early interference in his last race and then closed gamely to neck out Muggins. No telling just how good he may be. MUGGINS has a weight shift of three pounds in his favor, and he shapes up as a tough nut to crack. BLACK RHAPSODY is descending the claiming ladder, and he must be respected.

THIRD RACE

Hi Cliff, Waxwing, Frozen Mask

HI CLIFF is dropped from a good effort in an allowance race, and he looms al lover a winner. WAXWING, a dead-short second in his only start of the meeting, shapes up superior to FROZEN MASK.

FOURTH RACE

Joy Flag, Red Rogue, Golden X.

Anything can happen here. I'm calling JOY, FLAG, RED ROGUE and GOLDEN X. to finish in the order named and letting it go at that.

FIFTH RACE

War Admiral, Mucho Gusto, Clodion

If WAR ADMIRAL winds up again in Davey Jones' locker, MUCHO GUSTO may emerge triumphant. The latter pulled up to Clodion and Bull Lea in his most recent start. CLODION figures well under the weight of assignments.

SIXTH RACE

Sunport, Pumpgun, Hollinschickie

SUNPORT will have only PUMPGUN to drub. The lattter finished third to Forever Prince in his most recent essay. HOLLUSCHICKIE for the remainder.

SEVENTH RACE

Slavonia, Autograph, Liberty Torch

SLAVONIA holds all the speed of the party down to contest honors in the seventh race, and she needs only intelligent rating to win. AUTOGRAPH and LIBERTY TORCH rate in the order named.

EIGHTH RACE

Many Moons, Brilliant Rose, Van Nuys.

MANY MOONS, second to Prince Dean the other day, has little to carry her along in the early stages of this race, and she ifigures to open up a long early lead at leisure. From then on its just a question of her lasting. RILLIANT RORSE will be very dangerouh in the event of mud. VAN NUYS will rule a short-priced favorite in the wagering.

Melting Pot

DENVER, Nov. 11 (AP)—Hawaii University's football team, which plays University of Denver tomorrow, is a gridiron melting pot. Led by Captain "Kayo" Chung, a Korean guard, the squad represents 15 nationalities.

Blocking, Tackling Greatly Improved

CHICAGO, Nov. 11 (AP)—John Schommer, who has been at college football's "ringside" through 30 season's of officiating, thinks that blocking and tackling this fall not only have been better than ever but that spectators finally are showing some appreciation for those basic gridiron fundamentals.

"Blocking this season has been ferocious," said the veteran Big Ten conference football umpire.

"In the Minnesota-Northwestern and Notre Dame-Illinois games, the backs and linemen were really mowing them down, and on more than one occasion I've heard fans remark on the way ball-carriers would have their paths cleared for them.

"I think that in the six or eight games I've worked this fall I've seen more men momentarily stunned by hard blocks than in any other similar number of games in any past season," the former University of Chicago star continued.

"There hasn't been any deliberate intention to rough players. It's simply that coaches are teaching boys how to block effectively."

SETKO OUTSTANDING

The tackling also has been much better, Schommer believes.

"In my day you weren't supposed to tackle high," he said, "but now the danger of lateral passes make players grab ball-carriers around the necks."

There isn't much question that big ten teams and Notre Dame have shown some of the finest blocking this season the Midwest has ever seen.

Steve Sitko, Notre Dame quarterback, is generally known as a "brainy" field leader, but he also is a No. 1 blocker.

In Michigan, Forest Evashevski has been cutting them down for Tom Harmon, Paul Kromer and Norm Purucker all season, while Indiana's Paul Graham also has been consistently effective in clearing the way for runners.

BLOCKING APPLAUDED

One of the most spectacular plays of the Wisconsin-Northwestern game recently—and one which drew a roar from the stands—featured blocking by Northwestern players.

Jack Ryan returned a Badger punt 30 yards along the sidelines as four Wisconsin men were taken out by hard-blocking Wildcats backs and linesmen.

All-America Ring Tourney Booming

TOM KANALY SAYS that never in his long association with amateur boxing has there been such a rush of simon pure mitt wielders to compete as is true with this year's Hearst All-America tourney. Tom is busy at his office at the Arena arranging the entries for next Monday night's show which is certain to be replete with thrills.

The first of the tryout tourneys was held last Monday night. I was parked against the ring as the sturdy young boxers tossed punches for four hours. It was one of the best amateur boxing shows I have ever witnessed. The fact the big crowd waited until the last tussle had been decided was a tribute to the sturdy youngsters who were in there tossing blows.

The second set of tryout bouts on next Monday night should also be thrilling affairs. Advance interest in the show indicates a large crowd.

As usual, there will be popular prices of 55 cents and $1.10. This makes the Hearst All-America trials the fistic bargain of the year.

Gene Tunney Tendered Fine Reception

GENE TUNNEY was tendered a fine reception when in Boston to attend the U. S. Marine Corps birthday ball at the Garden. It was as a member of the marines in France that Tunney built up his body and improved his boxing so that he was later able to make a successful bid for the world's heavyweight championship against the iron fists of Jack Dempsey in Philadelphia.

AFL Reports Gain Of 300,000 Jobs

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP) — The American Federation of Labor has estimated that from 300,000 to 500,000 jobless found work during October.

In its monthly review of business the Federation also called yesterday for a "new conception of wages—wages based on producing power with machines" rather than human skills and energy alone.

Veteran Injured Hanging Flag

Peace proved more perilous than war for George Carey, 73, a Spanish War veteran today. He tumbled through the railing at his home in Tupelo road, Roxbury, in the act of hanging out a flag in honor of Armistice Day.

He fell 35 feet, receiving three fractured ribs and a severe shaking up. At the City Hospital doctors said he would recover.
